WOMAN AND HER HOME.

USEFUL HINTS: Things Women Should Know.

Now this damp November weather has set in the brass has an annoying habit of looking as if it had not been cleaned for a week five minutes after the maid has been rubbing vigorously. I asked a neighbour how it was her brass always kept so shiny, and she told me that after the brasswork is cleaned it is always rubbed over with a soft duster powdered with whitening.

Soft Soap.

One hears of all kinds of patent preparations for "soaking in" the clothes overnight in order to save labour in the morning, and no doubt many of these powders are harmless and really save work; but few people use soft soap as freely for laundry work as they should. If soft soap is dissolved in warm water with a little borax, it makes a splendid soap solution for flannels, blankets and such goods. And if the clothes are left to soak in for an hour or two, then it also saves considerable rubbing.

Preserving Meat.

I heard an excellent hint the other day on how to keep the meat fresh when it has to be kept a little longer than usual for any reason. Smear the joint with pepper or ground ginger; this can easily be washed off before the meat is cooked, and it has the added advantage of keeping away any flies or other pest that might be about. It is worth trying.

Stale Tobacco Odour.

No matter how much you enjoy the society of your husband's friends overnight, and no matter how you assure them, you really do not mind their rather strong pipes and cigars, it is annoying the next morning to have that odour of stale tobacco in the rooms. A housewife who is always entertaining has told me an excellent precaution, and by taking it the menfolk may indulge in as many smokes as they wish and there will be no objectionable smell the next morning.

If the very last thing a large bowl of freshly drawn cold water is placed in the room where the company has been sitting, and the ends of the cigars, etc., removed at the same time, there will be absolutely nothing to offend the most susceptible nostrils the day after, all odour having been completely absorbed by the water.

To Preserve Furniture Hint.

It is distressing to find that a piece of furniture one is particularly fond of is being eaten into by the wood-worm. It is one thing to arrest the depredations of this insect pest in furniture, another to strengthen the weakened wood into which it has eaten its way.

I have been told that creosote applied to furniture is splendid for ridding it of the furniture insect; but it is essential that the furniture affected should be treated in the early stages, as a single worm-eaten specimen may soon corrupt an entire suite.

Worn Pillow Slips.

All housewives, especially if they are mothers of a young family, know how soon the pillow-cases begin to get thin, and the other day I read of a very simple plan, and one which I have myself successfully tried since. Cut open the seam at the bottom and turn the pillow cases sides to middle, thus bringing the thin part where there is not so much wear. Then join the seam across the bottom in its new position and alter the tapes at the top, and the pillow case is ready for further service and has a new lease of life.

FOR THE COOK.

SALMON MOULD.

This makes a nice cold luncheon or supper dish, and is quite good made with tinned salmon.

Turn the fish out of the tin and remove all bone and skin. Mix with the fish half its weight in breadcrumbs, add a well-beaten egg, and season well with pepper and salt. Put it into a greased mould and steam for about 30 minutes.

When cold turn out, decorate with slices of cucumber, and serve with a good salad.

PILES: 14 YEARS AGONY

Germolene proves an amazing cure

Mr. C. E. Whiting, 6, Wesley-street, Willington, Durham, says:—"I had suffered with piles for 14 years. Often I was in torment, and I couldn't sleep for the heat and irritation, couldn't sit or lie in any comfort. I had almost made up my mind to operation when I got Germolene. I was simply amazed at the change. As I continued pain and irritation ceased, and soon I was quite cured."

YESTERDAY'S COURT CASES.

BIG NEWSPAPER CONTRACT.

DUBLIN COMPANY'S APPEAL.

THE AUTHORITY OF A DIRECTOR.

In the Court of Appeal for Southern Ireland yesterday, before the Lord Chief Justice, Lord Justice Ronan, and Lord Justice O'Connor, the arguments were continued in the new trial motion in the case of Fernstrom v. the Freeman's Journal, Ltd. The plaintiff had obtained a verdict for a large sum of money against the defendants in respect of a contract for paper, and the defendants seek to set that verdict aside. The contract was alleged to have been signed by Mr. Hamilton Edwards, one of the directors of the Freeman's Journal, on behalf of the company. The defence was that Mr. Edwards had no authority from the Board of his company to enter into the contract on its behalf. There was also an allegation in the defence that the paper was not intended for the purposes of the Freeman's Journal, but was intended for re-sale.

Mr. Brown, K.C.; Mr. Dickie, K.C., and Mr. Moloney (instructed by Messrs. Miley and Miley) appeared for the company, the appellants.

Mr. Serjeant Hanna, Mr. FitzGibbon, K.C., and Mr. Dockrell (instructed by Messrs. D. and T. Fitzgerald) appeared for the plaintiff, the respondent.

The plaintiff, it appeared, had obtained judgment for over £700.000, and for an alternative judgment of £115,000.

Mr. Brown, continuing his argument in support of the appeal, applied himself to the law of the case. Mr. Justice Dodd, he said, had declined to tell the jury that there was no evidence to go before them, expressed or implied, that Mr. Edwards had authority to enter into the contract on behalf of the company, and that there was no evidence that the paper was intended for the business of the company, but that it was a speculation, and intended for re-sale. He contended that these questions should have been put to the jury, and that there was no evidence of authority as regards Mr. Edwards, either expressed or implied, or by "holding out."

Lord Justice Ronan—In the case of a company when it was carrying on business in a certain way to the knowledge of every human being connected with the company, and outsiders deal with it on the faith of that, it seems to me to be a startling proposition to say that the company cannot be held responsible by reason of their conduct, as well as a private individual.

Mr. Brown said that he would deal with that.

MR. EDWARDS'S AUTHORITY.

Lord Justice O'Connor pointed out that Mr. Edwards was acting as manager and also as part proprietor in these transactions.

Mr. Brown proceeded to show with reference to previous transactions with the company that there was not a scrap of evidence of any authority on the part of Mr. Edwards to enter into contracts on behalf of the company. They had all to be confirmed and signed by the Board in Dublin. The initiation of the whole thing, he said, was a letter written from the London office of the Freeman's Journal, addressed to the plaintiff, and it was clear that no contract could be entered into without confirmation by the Board in Dublin, and a resolution being passed on the subject.

Lord Justice Ronan—I want to understand that when Fernstrom received that letter he did not think that Edwards was acting with authority on behalf of the Freeman's Journal Company?

Mr. Brown—I think he thought he was acting as a director.

Lord Justice Ronan—On behalf of the company!

Mr. Brown—But that his authority was that of a director. So far as the letters showed on their face, as appearing in previous transactions, Fernstrom must have known that Edwards was acting in the capacity of a director.

In reply to Lord Justice Ronan, Mr. Brown agreed that there was no evidence that Fernstrom ever knew or ever heard of the resolutions passed by the company confirming contracts. He also agreed that there was no resolution appointing Mr. Edwards manager, stating that there was no necessity for a resolution of that sort. He said that Fernstrom knew that Edwards was acting as a director, and that they made a common mistake in law—that Fernstrom was not acting on the "holding out" ground of authority, but on his own legal opinion.

Lord Justice Ronan suggested that, having regard to the paper market, the company might have decided to purchase a large quantity of paper with the view, perhaps, of re-sale.

Mr. Brown said that they could not do that, as the company was bound by the Memorandum of Association, and confined to the carrying on of its specific business.

Lord Justice Ronan said that he thought there was nothing to prevent the company from engaging in the business of wholesale stationers.

Lord Justice O'Connor said he saw nothing to prevent them starting a large quantity of wholesale stationers, or any other business they liked.

The Lord Chief Justice remarked that part of the business of the company, apparently, was selling fountain pens.

Mr. Brown said that was a matter of business, but the company could not go beyond its Memorandum of Association. It was very clear that a company of limited liability must be bound by the contracts it has made with its shareholders and the public, and bound to carry on the business and that business only.

Lord Justice O'Connor said that, apart from that, there was nothing in the Memorandum of Association to prevent the company from speculating.

THE PLAINTIFF'S DUTY.

Mr. Dickie, K.C., followed, and submitted that it was the duty of the plaintiff to have satisfied himself by some evidence that Mr. Edwards had authority to enter into the contract. As a director, Mr. Edwards had no implied authority to enter into a contract binding the company.

Lord Justice Ronan said that it was clear that Mr. Hamilton Edwards was never appointed managing director under the section of the Statute.

Mr. Dickie said that the only thing that Mr. Edwards was in a position to do was to manage the commercial carrying on of the business of the company; he could not go outside that and enter into matters of gambling and such like.

Mr. Serjeant Hanna, for the plaintiff, said that the two main questions in the case were (1) whether the contract was ultra vires, and (2) whether, if it was intra vires, there was sufficient evidence to support the findings of the jury.

Lord Justice Ronan said that he had been id some time ago that the Freeman's Journal as being sold to newsagents and newsboys for bree-farthings, the raw material of which cost the company a halfpenny. He was greatly impressed by the fifty thousand capital and the three million contract.

Mr. Serjeant Hanna said that these gentlemen, Messrs. Edwards and Fitzgerald, went into this business of reviving the Freeman on a big scale, with large ideas, and found that they "had bit off more than they could chew." They thought that the price of paper would have gone higher than £75 a ton, and that if they purchased a large quantity they would make a large fortune and the Freeman would have swept the country. The question was whether or not the contract was ultra vires because they had bought more than they required.

The arguments had not concluded when the Court rose for the day.

A TYRONE FARM.

ACTION TO RESCIND A CONTRACT

In the Chancery Division yesterday, before the Master of the Rolls, in the case of George Evans against Robert Clements,

Mr. Herbert Wilson, K.C. (instructed by Mr. Joseph Spier) applied on behalf of the plaintiff for an order rescinding a contract for sale of a farm of 143 acres at Beagh, County Tyrone, the judicial rent of which was £65 a year. The contract was dated March 31st, 1919, and the plaintiff paid to the defendant, on foot of the purchase price of £4,350, the sum of £2,000. There was a condition in the contract that the defendant should show clear title and clear off two mortgages. The date fixed for the completion of the contract was November 1st, 1919. The defendant, said counsel, could not be induced to do anything to show title, and the plaintiff, without prejudice to his rights, went into possession of the lands in October, 1919. On the 20th August the plaintiff issued a writ to compel the defendant to fulfil his contract, and the Master of the Rolls, in default of defences, gave judgment and ordered an inquiry as to whether a good title could be made, and also as to what damages the plaintiff had sustained by reason of the defendant not having completed his contract. The plaintiff in an affidavit stated that he had purchased the farm with the intention of selling it again at a profit. He had got an offer of £5,000 for the farm, but he could not accept it, owing to the absence of clear title. He claimed £650 damages, being the amount which he had lost because the defendant had not carried out his bargain.

Mr. Morgan Byrne (instructed by Mr. Frank Mayne) for the defendant opposed the motion, and said that the defendant had made an affidavit in which he said that the plaintiff had been using the land since he got into possession, that he had cut down timber, and had erected a saw-mill, and had thereby exhausted and wasted the land.

The further hearing was adjourned till Friday.

CHILD KILLED BY TAXI.

DRIVER SENT FOR TRIAL.

At the Dublin Police Court yesterday, Michael Tanham, Dromartin Castle, Dundrum, was sent for trial at the County Commission on a charge of causing the death of Kathleen O'Hara (5), of 50 Pembroke cottages, Donnybrook, by negligence in the management of a motor taxi, the property of Mr. Patrick Tracy, Fearock.

A small boy named Michael Connolly said that he was standing in Donnybrook near Cahill's garage on Saturday last, when he saw a motor car coming slowly towards the city. A little boy and girl were on the opposite side. When the motor was near him the little girl crossed the road and was knocked down by the car. The back left wheel passed over her head, and the car was pulled up immediately. The driver took the child to hospital. He did not hear the horn sounded.

Mrs. Mulholland, who picked up the child, said that it was lying on the tram track. She saw no tram car. The motor car was right beside the child.

Police evidence was that the accused, when charged at Donnybrook Station, where he had surrendered after the accident, voluntarily stated that he was driving along Donnybrook village towards Dublin on his own side of the road, and in passing a moving tram car, which was going towards Stillorgan road, a child ran from the back of the tram right in front of his car, and in the act of pulling up his car the child struck the right mud-guard. He swerved to the right to avoid running over the child, but heard a "bump" and stopped the car immediately. With the assistance of a lady he took the child to hospital. He did all in his power to avoid the accident.

Mr. Cooper, K.C., said that it was a case that should be investigated by a jury. He allowed the accused out on his own bail of £10.

BELFAST MILK SUPPLY.

CO-OPERATIVE DAIRY WORK.

COSTS AND QUALITY.

Mr. J. Hill, manager in the service of the Belfast Co-Operative Society, Ltd., was examined at yesterday's sitting of the Departmental Committee on the Cost of Living in Northern Ireland, held in Parliament House, Belfast. Mr. S. D. Bell, J.P., occupied the chair.

Mr. Hill, at the outset, said that the Committee of the Society welcomed the opportunity of assisting in the inquiry. He went on to explain details in regard to milk distribution. Up to 1913 members complained about the scarcity of supplies, quality and condition of milk, and the Committee, after inquiries in England and Scotland, decided to build and equip a modern dairy. They looked for supplies outside the ordinary Belfast milk vendors area—i.e., six to eight miles from the city, so that it could not be said that the "Co-Op." was competing with other vendors and forcing up the price to the disadvantage of its members and the public generally.

The Society's zone of supply lay from twelve to twenty-two miles outside the city originally, and it had now been extended to about fifty miles. The Society's idea was to set up a pure milk supply; produced under clean, healthy conditions, sold at current rates, and delivered in a hygenic way. The daily delivery by van was about 450 gallons at the commencement, and it now approached 3,000 gallons.

COSTS COMPARED.

Witness next dealt with present costs as compared with those prevailing in 1914, showing an increase under fourteen heads. Chief among these were:—Cost of collection, which had gone up 200 per cent.; wages, increased 132 per cent.; vans, 210 per cent.; harness, 200 per cent.; and horse-shoeing 150 per cent. The summer price of milk was increased by 53.8 per cent., and the winter price by 55.5 per cent.

In reply to a member of the Committee, witness said that he had no means of knowing what milk vendors were paying to the producer for supplies. The Society had no connection with the Milk Vendors' Association, and they did not consult that body.

To substantiate an assertion that the Irish dairy industry was in a bad way, Mr. Hill quoted the following report of the recent Commission of Inquiry into researches and industries:—"At the present range of prices, if, by the elimination of bad cows, and their replacement by good cows, the average yield of milk per cow per annum in Ireland could be increased from 400 to 700 gallons, the industry could be turned from a perilous enterprise to one of security, and the total increase in national wealth, per annum, would amount to £20,000,000." Ireland, he added, was a dairy country, yet no person was engaged wholly in the teaching of dairying, and there were no suitably equipped schools such as existed in Great Britain and other countries.

Mr. Leo Thomas raised the question of the 132 per cent. increase in wages, and Mr. D. Lyle Hall pointed out that none of the distributive trades had reduced wages or salaries.

Asked for prices of milk, witness stated that in 1913 they paid the producer on an average 5¼d. per gallon, added to which was 2d. for the cost of collection and haulage, and the retail price then was 1s. Now the price was 2s., and they paid an average of 1s. 2d. plus 2½d. for collection and haulage. At one period the Co-Operative Dairy was run at a loss. So far as prices were concerned producers were consulted when changes were contemplated. They aimed at a higher standard than the Government minimum of butter fat.

PRICES AND PRODUCTION.

Mr. T. M'Dowell reminded the Committee that retail prices should have some relation to the cost of production, inasmuch as they were determined, not by the producer, but by those who handled milk. Since the establishment of the Northern Ministry of Agriculture they had been able to render great assistance in the establishment of cow-testing stations, but the process was a long and tedious one. He would also remind the witness that there was a dairy school at Cookstown, which was now being utilised largely by Northern students.

Witness criticised existing conditions at the source of production, which, he said, were not a credit to farmers or to the Government. It seemed to be nobody's business to inspect cowsheds and to enforce rules, except the local veterinary surgeon's. He had visited cowsheds within sight of the city where light and sun never penetrated except when the door was open. The railways did not make proper provision for carrying milk.

He urged that the Public Health authorities should have power to enforce inspection of cows and cowsheds on all farms sending dairy produce into the city.

Mr. L. A. Bullwinkle suggested that in view of the important nature of the evidence tendered by Mr. Hill, it should be forwarded to the Ministry of Agriculture.

Several members agreed that the ideals put forward were deserving of every consideration.

The witness spoke strongly in favour of pasteurisation.

LICENSING LAW.

NICE POINT RAISED IN BELFAST CASE.

Great interest was taken in a licensing application before the Recorder of Belfast yesterday, in which Eleanor Mary Morgan, of the Imperial Hotel, Donegall place, Belfast, sought to have the licence for the premises confined to two rooms, with a cellar attached, fronting on Callender street.

Mr. A. J. Lewis, for the applicant, said that although this was in the form of an application for a new licence, it was in reality an application to destroy about 90 licences. The Court was being asked to segregate the front of the building from the rear, and to destroy the licence as it applied to the rooms in the former portion. They were not entirely free agents, and were not moving of their own volition. They were being mildly commandeered. The Government of Northern Ireland required the front portion of the building with a view to facilitating them in the administration of the law, and had approached them with this end in view. They would be prepared to agree to the Government's proposal if His Honour allowed them to retain the licence for the rear portion.

Mr. Murphy K.C., who opposed the application, raised the points that in 1902 the premises were licensed for Allsop for a wholesale dealers' establishment, and there was no suggestion that the hotel licence was ever extended; also, he submitted that a publican's licence was different from a hotel licence, at least for the purposes of an application under the Act of 1902, and any small distinction between the licences entitled the Court to say: "No, you are to be restricted to the license you hold."

Mr. Lewis applied for and was granted an adjournment to enable him to produce evidence with regard to the first point raised by Mr. Murphy.

PRODUCE AND FOOD.

CATTLE.

BIRMINGHAM, Tuesday.—Small entry of pigs and fairly good demand, with late rates holding firm. Choice imitions per score dead weight; Unsuitable bacons 20/7; small pigs 20/- to 21/-; sows 16/-.

LEEDS, Tuesday.—On offer 4565 beasts—94 to 114; sheep, 8,476—1/3 to 1/10; and seven cows and twenty-two calves. Irish—Bullocks, 1/5 to 1/7; dairy cows, 0—from £30 to £40 each; pigs, nil.

SALFORD, Tuesday.—Nearly 2,000 sheep and 900 beasts on offer. Choice quality animals scarce. Lambs made 1/6; small sheep 1/3, cwes up to 11d.; cattle about 10d. per lb.

GRAIN

DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE, Tuesday.—The volume of business passing in this market continues disappointing, and prices in the main are much as last quoted. However, some special outstanding parcels of choice oats make occasional extra rates, but it is very difficult to realise recent tip-top terms on barley at the moment; in fact, there is a lack of enquiry in business generally, which leaves values a bit uncertain.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES—BALTIC, Tuesday.—WHEAT—Cargo market ruled firm with a moderate demand. Steamer 30,000 quarters No. 1 Northern Manitoba November-December sold 50/4½. Roads 63/ins. loading 10th November sellers 51/-, 62/ins. January-February 48/-, Burusse 62/ins. afloat 51/3. Parcels (Ireport): No. 1 Northern Manitoba October-November sold 50/6, November-December 49/4½ to 49/6, No. 2 hard winter loading Avonmouth 51/6, Roads 62/ins. afloat 51/6, choice white Karachi October-November 51/6 per 480lbs. Parcels in fair demand and rates fully steady. Lambs MAIZE—Cargoes firm but quiet; Plate steamers afloat sellers 37/6, loading 36/9. October-November 36/3, November-December 35/6, January-February at last rates fully steady; Plate September-October sold 36/1½, October-November sold 35/9, November-December 35/4½, December-January 35/1½. No. 2 mixed American October-November sellers 35/6 per 480lbs. BARLEY quiet; Danube-Black Sea sellers 51/-, loading sellers 51/-, October-November 50/9. Parcels of No. 4 Canadian Western November-January quoted 52/-, No. 3 Canadian Western October 52/-, No. 2 white clipped American October 57/6 per 320lbs. Tuesday.—Supplies of potatoes ample. Trade slack. City terms for standard table quality three and a-half cwt. sold retail 5/- per cwt.

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.—WHEAT—Cables from America had little effect on speculative positions of wheat here at the outset, though prices, afterwards became irregular, December improving, and other months giving way to a fair extent. Moderate business was followed, but during the late afternoon all positions weakened, and final rates marked a liberal fall on the day, especially March delivery. Offers of No. 1 Manitoba arrived sold 59/6, afloat 61/6, October-November 49/6, November-December 49/5, December-January 49/4. No. 2 hard winter shipping 51/6, Rosario-Santa Fe 63lbs. and November 59/6, April 62/11½, early March 49/6 to 49/8. Cif. parcels MAIZE American mixed November sold 36/7½, shipping 35/10½. Wheat on the spot scarce and partially 2d. per cental over Friday. Maize spot per cental American mixed quoted 6/8, River Plate 8/3½ to 8/4 per cental. FLOUR firm, and local milled 1/- per 280lbs. dearer. Grades and wheat futures, after opening unchanged, fluctuated moderately, then gave way, and closed 1/12½ to 2d. per cental under last night. Maize options nominal.

PROVISIONS

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.—BACON—Live hogs at Cudworth were dearer, but speculative products dearer, while arrivals of bacon at Liverpool were only of a moderate character. The market for bacon generally being in firm with a fair demand for hollies, which are still scarce and dearer at 111/- to 113/- per cwt. while Wiltshire and Cumberlands attract much attention at late rates, with long cleans and backs again scarce and nominal. HAMS generally steady, short cut exceptionally strong and raised 2/- to 97/-, and 100/- per cwt. Shoulders firm, and with squares scarce holdens ask 2/- advance, being now quoted 68/- to 80/-, and some New York are now available at 74/- to 75/- per cwt. Canadian Wiltshires continue to advance, being raised a further 5/- to 110/- and 120/-. Irish and Continental more in request and firm at full prices. LARD on the spot in good request, and limited offering at 1/- per cwt. advance for choice of American refined—91/- to 92/-, prime steam being nominal in the absence of supplies. CHEESE strong, and quietly active at a further advance of 2/- per cwt., 112/- to 114/-, being now wanted for both white and coloured Canadian. BUTTER firmer, with a fair inquiry for the WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—A depression off the Hebrides will cause a strong south-westerly wind current over the British Isles, with a rising temperature, and rain probably spreading to all districts to-day.
Ireland, N.W., N.E., S.E., and S.W.—Fresh or strong southerly to south-westerly winds, a gale in places; much cloud, some rain; visibility moderate; mild.
South-West Seaboard—Mouth of Channel to S.W., Ireland.—Wind south-westerly, strong to high; much cloud, probably some rain; visibility moderate; sea rather rough.
Irish Sea and St. George's Channel—North-West Seaboard—N. Ireland to Hebrides.—Wind south to south-west, strong, a gale at times; much cloud, some rain; visibility moderate; sea rough.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

On Monday night the Great Southern and Western Company's station at Mallow was almost wholly destroyed by fire.—(P. 5.)
Republicans on Sunday attacked Clifden, County Galway, compelling the garrison of national troops to surrender, after a ten hours' fight.—(P. 7.)
In an exchange of telegrams on the Colonial Secretary's vacating office, he and Mr. Cosgrave, Chairman of the Irish Provisional Government, express faith in the Irish Treaty.—(P. 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

Mr. Bonar Law announced yesterday further additions to his Government. Colonel Walter Guinness and Mr. Ronald McNeill have been given under secretaryships.—(P. 5.)

ABROAD

Italy's new era has opened with enthusiastic demonstrations of loyalty to the King and the new régime. The Fascisti have been ordered to demobilise and return to work for the common weal.—(P. 5.)
Angora has accepted the invitation to the Near East Peace Conference under protest. America has replied that it cannot participate officially, but will send unofficial envoys to watch American interests.—(P. 5.)
Dr. Wirth, the Chancellor, received members of the Reparations Commission in Berlin yesterday. He said that Germany was short of food and coal, and was faced with a winter of starvation and cold. He urged the Allies to take immediate steps to stabilise the mark.—(P. 6.)

SPORTING.

At the Curragh yesterday Mr. T. M'Carthy's Galtee Boy won the Mullaboden Plate.—(P. 8.)
At Birmingham The Villager won the Sutton Handicap Plate.—(P. 8.)

COMMERCIAL

London Stock Markets were very quiet, and the decline in prices, though small, was general.—(P. 9.)
Dublin Stock Market showed a number of small falls.—(P. 9.)

Irish Settlement.

Mr. Bonar Law's Government is now complete, and we have no doubt that the country will regard it with general favour. It is not a Government of "stars"; but nearly every one of the Ministers whose appointments are announced to-day has earned a reputation for soundness and efficiency in public business. Curiously enough, while Ireland has seceded almost entirely from the floor of the House of Commons, she figures with some prominence in the new Ministry. Mr. Ronald McNeill, the well-known Northern Unionist, becomes Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. He is balanced—from the Irish point of view—by the Hon. Walter Guinness, who in recent years has been one of the ablest defenders of Southern Unionist interests. We congratulate Mr. Guinness on his promotion to the important post of Under-Secretary of State for War. Mr. Wilfrid Ashley, the new Minister of Works and Transport, has close associations with Ireland. Sir Samuel Hoare, who becomes Secretary of State for Air, is not an Irishman, but many Irishmen of more than one party will welcome his presence in the new Government. As chairman of the late Government's committee on compensation awards he has made himself familiar with Irish affairs; and he is a broad-minded and sympathetic student of our great experiment. He is, perhaps, the only one of Mr. Bonar Law's colleagues who has attended a session of the Provisional Parliament.

If we choose to examine the personnel of the new Ministry for signs and portents, we shall find no cause for alarm. Certainly no fair-minded man in Great Britain or Ireland can describe it as a "Die-hard" Ministry. It was not created on an Irish issue, and it accepts its predecessor's Irish obligations as a legacy of honour. These facts have some bearing on the exchange of courtesies between Mr. Winston Churchill and President Cosgrave which we print to-day. If the Free State brings peace and prosperity to Ireland, she will owe much to Mr. Churchill, whose skill, tact and patience were largely responsible for the vital agreement in London. We are very sorry, therefore, that in his message to Mr. Cosgrave Mr. Churchill has yielded to the temptation of trying to make party capital out of Irish affairs. He suggests that the downfall of Mr. Lloyd George and himself was due to "Die-hard" anger at their part in the Irish settlement. "The old hatreds on both sides of the Channel," he says, "have been able to wreak a certain measure of vengeance." Of course there is no truth in this suggestion. The bolt that felled Mr. Lloyd George came from an Eastern, not a Western, sky. If Mr. Churchill hoped, however, that Mr. Cosgrave's answer would furnish him with material for election speeches, he was doomed to disappointment. The President has replied, with admirable propriety and prudence, that "we are not concerned with party issues in Great Britain, and we know nothing of the merits of the domestic questions upon which your Ministry has quitted office."

We may admit that the temptation to which Mr. Churchill yielded was insidious, and we can agree with Mr. Cosgrave's tribute to his statesmanship on the Irish issue. Nevertheless, Mr. Churchill has set a lamentable example, and Mr. Cosgrave, by refusing to encourage it, has deserved well of both parties to the settlement. The bargain is sealed. The Provisional Parliament has ratified the Free State Constitution, and the new British Parliament is pledged to ratify it within the next few weeks. So far as Great Britain is concerned, Irish affairs—with the exception of the last and definitely assured formality of ratification—have become a matter for Irishmen alone. On their sanity, patience and patriotism, and on nothing else, the whole future of Ireland now depends. We deprecate most heartily any attempt to raise the Irish question in any form at the coming general election in Great Britain. We deprecate with equal vigour any attempt to force issues in Ireland before the necessity for dealing with them becomes inevitable. People who seek to anticipate trouble are, in the vulgar phrase, "asking" for it. Of course, no sensible Irishman is blind to the fact that difficult and perplexing issues—the boundary question, for instance—must arise and must be solved. By keeping our eyes still fixed on Westminster, however, we delay national recognition of the essential need of co-operation and compromise among ourselves. Mr. Churchill says—we believe, truly—that Northern statesmen like Sir James Craig and the Marquis of Londonderry desire peace with the South. We know that President Cosgrave and his colleagues are not less eager in their pursuit of peace with Ulster. In that common sentiment the real and only hope of Irish unity abides.

Russia's Case.

One of the urgent problems that will claim the attention of the Marquis Curzon after the election will be the question of Britain's relations with Russia. Lenin has thrown his Marxian doctrines definitely overboard. He is anxious to secure political recognition from the European Powers, and the interview which M. Krassin gave yesterday to a German journalist indicates that he is determined to achieve his aim. Some weeks ago, just before the Near Eastern crisis reached its boiling point, a British firm, through the agency of a Mr. Urquhart, concluded a very advantageous "deal" with M. Krassin. This arrangement gave the British firm certain important concessions, and its ratification by the Soviet Government would have attracted large sums of British money into Russia. Nevertheless, Lenin and his associates refused point blank to give their consent to the compact, with the result that, for the moment, at any rate, the whole business has fallen through. M. Krassin explains the reasons for his chief's refusal. "Like the rest of Europe," he says, "Russia, unfortunately, puts politics before business." Lenin would not ratify the Urquhart agreement because Britain would not treat with Russia on equal terms in regard to the Near East. Naturally, Russia lost heavily, but apparently Lenin is far more deeply concerned with political recognition than with commercial advantages. In ordinary circumstances the British Government might ignore his scarcely veiled threat to boycott Great Britain and trade solely with the Germans; but, unfortunately, Germany is not the only country which is making overtures to Moscow. M. Herriot, the Labour Mayor of Lyons, returned recently from Russia, which he visited ostensibly on "private business." Last year, our readers may recollect, M. Franklin-Bouillon visited Angora also on "private business," with the almost immediate result that a separate pact was made between France and Mustapha Kemal Pasha. There seems to be very little doubt that M. Herriot's trip to Moscow was of a similar nature. France has been the most embittered enemy of the Bolshevist régime. But for M. Clemenceau, Lenin and his friends would have been invited to Prinkipo in February, 1919, and the whole course of post-war history might have been changed. But for M. Poincaré an arrangement would have been made at Genoa last spring, and there might have been no trouble at Chanak. Since the Russians have abandoned pure Bolshevism, however, France has changed her attitude, and a rapprochement with Russia is well within the bounds of early possibility. Britain was left in the lurch at Angora when M. Franklin-Bouillon "got in on the ground floor" with the Turks. She must be careful to avoid the same misfortune in Russia.

Diaries.

Not a little heartburning has been caused in England by the Postmaster-General's announcement that diaries are not admissible at the inland printed paper rate, but must be despatched either as parcels or as letters. With the advent of November, Christmas shopping begins to take its place in the daily list of things that must be remembered. Methodical persons decide once more to shop early and to avoid the rush. People with cousins in China and nephews in New Zealand discover in the local post offices timely warnings that, if their gifts and greetings are to reach their remote destinations in time, they must be posted before such and such a date. Most of these good people buy diaries. What becomes of all the diaries is one of the major mysteries. Nobody ever receives less than three at Christmas; yet nobody—at least no human person—ever keeps a diary. The diaries of society ladies and old-fashioned noblemen appear occasionally on the market, and the one hundred and forty-first instalment of the Farington Diary has just appeared in the Morning Post. It is safe to say, however, that the Farington family never laid the foundation of the fortunes of any stationer. The kind of diary that must not go through the post at the printed paper rate polishes the diarist off at the rate of a week to a page. There is just enough space to write opposite Monday "chops" or "last day for making income tax return," if the diarist happened to have the diary on his person when the moment arrived for making a record of these matters. On the other hand, the modern diary is an encyclopædia of specialised information. One buys the Boy Scouts' Diary or the Golfers' Diary, according to taste, and keeps it on one's writing desk. The Postmaster-General denies the inland printed paper rate to diaries on the plea that they are not "works of a literary character." They are seldom anything else.

A New Fleet.

Early in September a passenger steamer belonging to the United States Shipping Board was stated to have "run amok" in Buenos Ayres harbour. The cause of the vessel's untimely levity was not disclosed, and, as the United States Government is fairly launched on an effort to induce all American subjects to travel on American lines, we may assume that no future light will be thrown on the matter. We shall not be told, for instance, whether the incident was in any way responsible for the stern decree that forbids ships to enter American ports with intoxicating liquor in their holds. Owing, however, to the fact that the Argentine Navy became the victim of this maritime reveller, the matter could not be suppressed entirely. The Argentine Republic immediately put in a claim for a new navy on the ground that what was left of the original High Seas Fleet was not worth talking about. The United States Government indignantly repudiated the claim. It happened, however, that the United States possesses a number of surplus cruisers, torpedo-boats and other fighting ships—enough, indeed, for several South American navies. In the end good relations were re-established by the transfer to the Argentine Navy of one destroyer and four submarine chasers. So, all is well that ends well.

NEW LONDON PLAY.

MANY THRILLS IN "THE CAT AND THE CANARY."

"The Cat and the Canary," presented last night by George Grossmith and J. A. E. Malone at the Shaftesbury Theatre, London, is an exciting, hair-raising piece of work, calculated to make a nervous person shiver and quake in the dark for a long time, and to thrill even the oldest playgoer suffering from ennui. It is full of action—weird, eerie doings; dark and dreadful deeds—from the first moment to the final curtain. To start with, there is a haunted house, an escaped dangerous lunatic, and a terrific storm.

* * * *

A number of folk interested in the codicil of a will do their best to drive crazy a young girl by all the creepy ways imaginable. She does not inherit if she is proved of unsound mind, and the estate goes to the person whose name is in a sealed envelope. The whole action of the play takes place between 11.30 p.m. and 1 a.m. next morning. The wonder is that the whole audience did not have hysterics.
The heroine—lovely golden-haired Miss Mary Glynne, looking perfectly sweet in a dress of old rose—must be made of sterner stuff than would appear, otherwise she would faint right away in the first act and refuse to "come to."
Miss Esmé Beringer, as a queer, black "Mammy," is positively uncanny, and Miss Auriol Lee, as an outspoken, objectionable cousin, is quite amusing. Mr. Frank Denton, who was the hesitating, bashful "Paul Jones," a nervous lover, was screamingly funny. It was a relief to get away from the thrills occasionally.

* * * *

The author of this amazingly crude series of shocks, which is called a play, is Mr. John Willard, and it is produced by Mr. Percy Moore.
Critics were specially asked not to give away the solution of the plot, as a great deal of the interest is killed if the audience knows the final denouement; and it will be agreed that in plays depending almost entirely for situations for their interest, the evening's amusement is to a great extent spoiled if the climax is known in advance. Hence I give but the barest outline of what is an extremely thrilling melodrama. If the secret is kept as closely as was that of "The Bat" (which ran for a year at the St. James's), then "The Cat and the Canary" should have a long period of prosperity.

THE POSTAL COMMISSION.

A public meeting of the Irish Postal Commission will be held on Friday next at Room No. 19, Jury's Hotel, Dublin, at 11 a.m., to consider the scheme of re-organisation of the Post Office.

ORIEL HOUSE.

WORK OF THE NEW DEPARTMENT.

Since the Criminal Investigation Department was organised, with its headquarters in Oriel House, where the big explosion took place on Monday night, it has proved very successful in carrying out the duties for which it was established. As at present constituted, the C.I.D. consists of one Director, one Chief Superintendent, two Superintendents, eight Inspectors, eight Assistant Inspectors, and one hundred and ten Detective Officers.
Most citizens are familiar with the appearance of men of the "G" Division of the Dublin Metropolitan Police, and perhaps their physique has on more than one occasion given them away" to would-be law-breakers. In this respect the Oriel House force have a decided advantage, and make full use of it, as the large numbers of clever captures that they have made prove. Not alone have they exhibited smartness in detecting criminals while committing lawless acts, but in the matter also of tracing, from very meagre data, missing property.
The time of the various officials is fully occupied from morning to night. As an instance, it may be stated that during the past week the C.I.D. made fifty-two arrests, and had the handling of forty-six new cases. At the last City Sessions they had a large number of cases before the Recorder, and the men who were engaged on them exhibited such a high standard of intelligence and acuteness that His Honour expressed his keen appreciation of the good police work performed by the detective officers of the C.I.D.

During the comparatively brief period of its existence the force has had to deal with almost all classes of crime—"hold-ups" (robbery under arms), breaking and entering, shooting with intent to kill, the stealing of bicycles and motor cars, and the investigation of ambushes, house breaking, and thieving of every kind.
In their headquarters at Oriel House the rooms are spacious and airy. All the men sleep there and have every home comfort. In the mornings they assemble in a parade room, and the day's duty begins. They work outside singly or in small numbers, and make use of bicycles and motor cars. As an instance of their acuteness in following up a clue, mention may be made of a case of the stealing of a motor van on the 28th October from a motor company in the city. This was reported to the C.I.D., and on the following day members of the force recovered the car at Bohernabreena, and in the same locality they discovered a Douglas motor cycle which had been cleverly hidden away. This cycle still awaits an owner.
It will be observed that the work of the C.I.D. takes them farther afield than is the case with the detective branch of the Metropolitan Police. Whilst the latter are confined to the metropolis—unless their services are specially requested by some outside district—the C.I.D. are not so restricted, and therefore have a very wide territory to cover.

* * * *

One of the greatest assets of the C.I.D. is to be found in the fact that there is nothing of the accepted detective appearance about the men, and the laughing young fellow seated beside you in the theatre or on the tram, and who obliges you with a match, may be a very wide-awake unit of the new organisation, out on an important piece of investigation work. The heads of the various departments have been very carefully chosen, and from the Director down to the youngest Assistant Inspector there will not be found "a square peg in a round hole."

COURT AND PERSONAL.

The Prince of Wales will go to Windsor today for the first stag hunt of the season. He will spend the night at Easton Grey, and will hunt with the Duke of Beaufort's Hounds tomorrow, returning to York House in the evening.

Prince George will soon join the King and Queen at Sandringham. He has been cruising on the West coast of Scotland on board H.M.S. Mackay for the past couple of weeks, and has had some shooting. His ship is due at Campbeltown to-day, and probably will remain till Friday.

The Duke and Duchess of Alba and Berwick have left London for Paris. The Duke and Duchess of Penaranda, who have been staying in London, have returned to their residence near Toledo. The Marquis de Viana has left London for Spain. The Due and Duchesse de Crussac who have been staying in London with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gordon, will return to Paris this week.

Sir Auckland Geddes has arrived at Government House, Ottawa, on a visit to the Governor-General of Canada, Lord Byng of Vimy.

The Earl and Countess of Granard, who are paying visits in America, will return to England early in November. The Earl and Countess of Donoughmore are touring in France, and will return to London shortly. The Marquis and Marchioness of Dufferin and Ava have let their house in London until the spring, and during the winter Lady Dufferin will go to America for a few months.

The Hon. Walter Guinness had intended to begin a tour to the Far East before Christmas, but has postponed it owing to the General Election, in which he will stand as the Conservative candidate for Bury St. Edmunds. He and Lady Evelyn Guinness are now at their house in London. Mr. and Mrs. Blacker Douglas, who left Bellevue Park, Killiney, a few weeks ago, have taken a house in Jersey, where they will spend the winter.

LONDON LETTER.

ELECTION AMENITIES.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

t is to be noted that Mr. Lloyd George, the general election draws nearer, is uming a more personal note, and those o are acquainted with his methods fully icipate that his present difficulties will ll to make his speeches increase in in- tive and personal references. It is unfor- ate that the ex-Prime Minister should m it necessary to return to his methods earlier days, because they bring out a e in politics that might easily have n left behind. But, with such a minent leader taking such a course, rank and file find it easy to follow. eady it is said that Mr. Bonar Law respond in kind, so far as his methods permit, to the attacks made on the servative Party.

fancy that a good many of the National erals must be wishing that their leader e a little less tempestuous in his hods. Some of them would have been e content to support the present ernment; others would have returned he old Liberal fold. But now they d to be shot at from both sides.

his is the result of Mr. Lloyd George's g to run with the hare and hunt with hounds. He still calls himself a ral, and yet he is angry because the nervatives in many districts prefer to their own candidates, and still more r, because the Conservative Central ce allows them to do so. At the same e, his faithful henchman, Mr. Curdy, has been complaining at North- pton because thirty of his flock are g opposed by "so-called Liberal candi- es, whom he further described as t-treats."

t is really quite time that Mr. Lloyd rge should realise that, as Mr. Gibbs ntly told him at the City of London etin; to-day, the reason that actuated Conservative Party in breaking up the lition was not, as he has absurdly sug- ed, to change Lord Balfour for Lord lsbur. "It was the change of Mr. yd George for a quiet, unassuming, ewd and untheatrical Scotsman, who- ld nc take all the functions of govern- nt into his own hands."

E TORY REVOLT.

nother thing that Mr. Lloyd George ld do well to get out of his head is notion that the movement was engi- red by the persons who now form the ernment. Why, if the late Lord Chan- or's estimate of them is correct, they e not brains enough for such an rous job. The fact, plain to everyone the ex-Prime Minister and his retir- colleagues, is that the revolt against Coalition was a spontaneous move- t of the local Conservatives in the stituencies and was forced by them n their representatives in Parliament, y of whom, including the present me Minister, were most reluctant to e part in it until they were assured there was no other way of holding Conservative Party together.

o put it in the plainest possible ner, Mr. Lloyd George is now regarded a vast number of people as a liability er than an asset. Hence the unwilling- of Conservatives and Liberals alike many constituencies to entrust their rests to the National Liberal candi- s. If the ex-Prime Minister, out of e at the action of Conservative Asso- ions, carries out his threat to "spread war" by running a much larger ber of candidates, he will, no doubt, e the defeat of a good many Conser- ves and let in a good many Labour or ee Free" candidates, but he will not himself or his party any good.

he ex-Prime Minister's list of honours long time coming out, but it is said Lord Birkenhead will certainly be an earldom. Precedent used to re that this rank was given only to ds Chancellors when they became Lord ncellor a second time, but precedent broken in the case of Lord Loreburn, it can be easily broken in the case of d Birkenhead, who is already a ount.

any beside Roman Catholics will be y to hear of the death of Father nard Vaughan, whose kindness of heart eared him to people of all classes, e his outspoken sermons regarding the tting sins of society had made him wn to thousands who do not ordinarily much interest in religion. The ers to-day are full of examples of his humour, such as "I believe in the who created Mr. Wells; not in the whom Mr. Wells has created."

NDON CONTESTS.

ondon boroughs are well provided with didates for the election, since there are 150 standing for 62 seats, with the sibility of another score being added the number before nomination day. In City of London, where the candidates Sir Frederick Banbury and Mr. nfell, there is unlikely to be an elec- , since these two candidates were cted this morning by the City of don Conservative Association, and no rs seem to be in sight. The City of don, packed though it is with people ughout the day, has a small number electors, since most of the City occu- s prefer to have their votes registered re they live. Therefore, the City has 26,153 male voters and 17,805 female rs; 22,651 of these are representative premises registered for business pur- s.

have mentioned here that some of the our leaders are by no means anxious et into power, owing to the grave ployment question and their full isation that they could do little to rove it. Now we have Labour candi- s admitting that the Labour Party is ble to solve the unemployment ques- , while one says that there is no le, quack remedy for it. The sooner truth is recognised by the worker the er there will be a change in the tion. In many hundreds, and, per- thousands, of cases men and women g on the unemployment dole are wait- or work to come and find them, instead etting up and finding work.

general election always exercises a er depressing influence on trade, but can be so doubt that in many idual cases it is a very good . Now that all the polls are taken ne day, there must be a great demand conveyances, since elderly people want te, and many of them cannot walk to olling station. Then hotels and public- s benefit largely, if only because the dates, their agents, speakers, and wers generally must have a place for and sleep if they do not live in the ict. Printers, too, are in great de- d; for broad sheets have to be pro- d at short notice at high prices and y rates for overtime, while the bill- rs revel in the exciting times that such a demand for their energies. FAITH IN THE TREATY.

MR. COSGRAVE'S HOPE FOR GOOD-WILL AND UNITY IN IRELAND.

EXCHANGE OF VIEWS WITH MR. CHURCHILL.

"UNCEASING, TORMENTING STRUGGLE" BY MEN WHOSE WORD IS THEIR BOND.

I cannot think any Government could be formed in Great Britain, or any House of Commons returned, which will not ratify, register, and implement the Treaty settlement, provided that Ireland does her part fully and faithfully.—MR. CHURCHILL.

We share your faith in the Treaty which our nations have made and ratified, and in its fulfilment we look to find good-will and unity in Ireland, and peace at last between Great Britain and Ireland, and the fruits of peace.—MR. COSGRAVE.

THESE statements on the Treaty appear in telegrams exchanged between Mr. Winston Churchill and Mr. Cosgrave on the resignation of the Coalition Cabinet.

Mr. Churchill says that the Treaty cost Mr. Arthur Griffith and General Michael Collins their lives, but in Mr. Cosgrave, Mr. Mulcahy, Mr. Kevin O'Higgins, and others "we have found Irishmen whose word is their bond."

He expresses a hope that, on the basis of the Treaty, good-will and lasting unity may spring up between North and South.

Mr. Cosgrave, in his reply, declares the Treaty to be "a big thing, too close to us yet to be truly valued, but which, if not blindly undone, or stupidly whittled away, contains the fertile seeds of great generation."

The full text of the messages is as follows:—

FROM MR. CHURCHILL TO MR. COSGRAVE:—

In laying down my official responsibilities towards the Government of the Irish Free State, I take the opportunity of expressing to you and your colleagues in the Irish Government, as well as to your principal military commanders, my most earnest and abiding good wishes and my sure confidence that success will not be denied you.

PURCHASE PRICE OF PEACE.

No one knows better than I the character of the unceasing and tormenting struggle which was forced upon Mr. Arthur Griffith and General Michael Collins from the moment when the Treaty between the two nations was signed. It has cost them their lives; but in you and Mr. Mulcahy, Mr. Kevin O'Higgins, and others we have found Irishmen whose word is their bond.

The British signatories of the Treaty have now also on their side to pay a part of the purchase price of peace between the two islands. But, although the old hatreds on both sides of the Channel have been able to wreak a certain measure of vengeance, they will be powerless to deprive the future of the inheritance which is now so plainly within its reach.

I cannot think any Government could be formed in Great Britain, or any House of Commons returned, which will not ratify, register, and implement the Treaty settlement, provided that Ireland does her part fully and faithfully.

UNITY WITH THE NORTH.

The British signatories of the Treaty will continue to use the whole influence at their command to secure its fulfilment. It is also my earnest hope that, on the basis of the Treaty, good-will may spring up between North and South, which will promote the growth of common interests and lead on ultimately to a true and lasting unity.

In Sir James Craig and Lord Londonderry you have statesmen who, as I know beyond a doubt, have a genuine affection for the interests of Ireland as a whole. I have been so glad to see of late signs of increasing co-operation in official matters between the two Governments.

Looking back, we can see that since January the road that has been traversed is enormous. In taking leave of you at this juncture, I can feel real thankfulness for the past and real hope for the future.

(Signed) WINSTON CHURCHILL.

FROM MR. COSGRAVE TO MR. CHURCHILL:—

The valedictory message which you have sent us on vacating office touches many chords. Hitherto the exit of a British Cabinet from power has meant for us in Ireland but another milestone on the long, dark road of alien government imposed on our nation, shadowed with futility in rule on the one hand and utter bitterness in resistance on the other.

THE TURN IN THE ROAD.

But in our day and generation we have found the turn in the road, and we have taken it and now are faring onward. Whenever we look back we shall see standing out at the bend in the way, whence we have taken our new bearings, a milestone greater than the rest, shutting out of view much of the ugly journey we have so painfully travelled.

We are not concerned with party issues in Great Britain, and we know nothing of the merits of the domestic questions upon which your Ministry has quitted office; but we do know that, in our regard, your Ministry represents a combination of vision and boldness in statesmanship unparalleled in the unhappy relations of our two countries, and that you have done a big thing, too close to us yet to be truly valued, but which, if not blindly undone or stupidly whittled away, contains the fertile seeds of great generation.

PEACE AT LAST.

We share your faith in the Treaty which our nations have made and ratified, and in its fulfilment we look to find good-will and unity in Ireland, and peace at last between Great Britain and Ireland, and the fruits of peace.

We have to acknowledge with great appreciation the sympathetic insight, tact, and breadth of view with which you have handled the many difficult questions which have been presented to you as the Minister principally charged with the implementing of the settlement.

It is our earnest hope that you may be speedily restored to health.

URQUHART DEAL.

KRASSIN EXPLAINS WHY IT FELL THROUGH.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Tuesday.

Krassin, in an interview to-day, practically admitted that Russia refused to ratify the Russo-Asiatic Agreement owing to the attitude of Great Britain regarding Russia's presence at the Near East Conference.

"Unfortunately Russia, like the rest of Europe, puts politics ahead of business," he said. "Russia did not demand recognition, but it is certain that the agreement would have been ratified had it not been for the Near East crisis coming up."

Krassin intimated that his resignation was conditional, and based upon his economic policy.

He explained that the Urquhart agreement was not rejected on its merits, as the Russian Government had ratified agreements considerably less favourable to Moscow, such as the signing away all Russian gold for locomotives and certain materials that she needed.

Urquhart's representative, with Krassin, is leaving for Moscow next week, and unless he is then successful in putting over the agreement he will quit the job for good.

BELFAST BOMB DUMP

DISCOVERED IN A FIELD.

An official report issued by the Ministry of Home Affairs, Northern Ireland, states that yesterday police carrying out a search in some fields off the Glen road, Belfast, discovered, concealed there, 23 Mills bombs, undetonated, and 30 tins of rifle oil.

LORD HARDINGE.

REASONS FOR HIS RETIREMENT.

Reuter's Agency learns that Lord Hardinge of Penshurst, who has been British Ambassador in Paris since November, 1920, has intimated his desire to retire from that post at the end of the present year. This decision is due to personal reasons only and has been received with the utmost regret by His Majesty's Government.

The Paris newspaper Parisien understands that during a visit to M. Poincaré on Monday Lord Hardinge informed the Prime Minister of his intention to resign his post at the end of the year or, at the latest, in January next, for family reasons. The paper adds:—"M. Poincaré expressed his very deep regret at the decision—a regret which is shared by the whole of the French Government."

HEAD-ON COLLISION IN THE AIR.

TWO AMERICAN AVIATORS KILLED.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

HONOLULU, Tuesday.

A collision in the air between two American Army aeroplanes occurred here last evening.

The machines met head-on while flying at a height of 200 feet above Luke Field. Both the aviators were killed, and the two observers were so seriously injured that they are not expected to survive.

A mist over the aviation field at the time of the collision rendered visibility difficult.

The dead pilots are Lieutenant Thomas Hynes and Sergeant Rose Owens.

ULSTER'S GOOD RECORD.

SIR J. CRAIG'S HOPEFUL SPEECH.

Ulster's high credit and her trade revival were the leading topics in an address which Sir James Craig (Northern Premier) delivered last night at a meeting of the Chamber of Trade in Belfast.

Ulster, said Sir James, could look forward with confidence at all events to a great revival of trade in the coming spring. After six months of grave anxiety, it was no small matter for them to say that Ulster had not incurred any debt. There had been no extra taxation on the people. They were bearing exactly the same, and doing their duty, as British citizens.

It was no small thing to be able to say that during the dark days that had passed over them they were able to carry on the Government of the country.

Another thing that they could take credit for was the financial stability of the province, and they had secured the admission of Great Britain and the rest of the Empire that Ulster's credit was as high as ever it was.

There could be no better catch-word, said the Premier, than what they used to say in the old days—"Unity amongst ourselves."

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE.

GENEVA, Tuesday.

At the International Labour Conference at Geneva yesterday it was decided to increase the number of members of the governing body. After a lively discussion it was resolved to meet from time to time, as often as necessary, and at least once every two years.

MALLOW STATION BURNED.

GREAT DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY.

DAMAGE ESTIMATED AT MANY THOUSANDS.

The Great Southern and Western Railway Company's fine station at Mallow, County Cork, has been destroyed by fire, and the greater part of the big group of buildings is now a mass of ruins.

The news reached Dublin yesterday evening, and it is stated that the burning was malicious. Among the ruined buildings are the parcels and booking offices, the refreshment rooms, the ladies' and gentlemen's waiting rooms, and the stationmaster's residence.

Mallow Station, which is about twenty miles from Cork City, was one of the most important stations on the system. Situate in the centre of a fertile agricultural district, a large volume of business was transacted in cattle and farm produce. All trains to and from Cork passed through Mallow, as did the trains on the Kerry lines as far as Tralee.

Owing to the failure of the telegraph lines, it was impossible to get into touch with either Mallow or Cork last night, but from reports which reached Dublin from other centres, the destruction appears to be very serious, and the damage will run into many thousands of pounds.

It is presumed that the burning will temporarily affect the running of the trains through Mallow Station, and add to the difficulties which the company have had to contend with there in their efforts to maintain passenger and goods services.

Some months ago a great ten-span bridge was blown up near the town.

FATHER BERNARD VAUGHAN.

DEATH OF FAMOUS PRIEST.

Father Bernard Vaughan, S.J., the famous Roman Catholic preacher, died at 6 o'clock yesterday morning at the Roehampton House of the Society of Jesus. He was 76 years of age. Father Vaughan was taken ill at Sheffield two months ago while on a visit to Viscount Fitz-Alan, but recovered sufficiently to be removed to the Jesuit College, where he was able to get about in a bath chair. He had been confined to bed for three days, and recently had expressed his happiness that he was to end his days at the College with which he had for so long been associated.

FATHER BERNARD VAUGHAN, S.J.

WORK IN EARLY LIFE.

FatherBernard Vaughan was one of the best-known figures in the Roman Catholic priesthood in Great Britain, and his name figured more prominently and more frequently in the newspapers than that of most other ecclesiastics as a result of his so frequently plunging into controversies on the social and political topics of the hour, and being a frequent and brilliant contributor of signed articles and interviews in the daily Press. Born on the 20th August, 1847, he was a son of the late Colonel Vaughan, of Courtfield, Herefordshire, and a brother of the late Cardinal Vaughan, Archbishop of Westminster. Educated at Stonyhurst College, Father Vaughan joined the Society of Jesus. The earlier years of his labours in the priesthood were spent in the city of Manchester, where his work familiarised him with the conditions of life among the British working classes, and brought him into contact with the large Irish population resident in that great industrial centre. Going to London in 1901, Father Vaughan continued his work in connection with the Jesuit Mission at Farm street, W., and did much good work among the poorer classes in Westminster parish and throughout the East End, organising concerts and bazaars for the women and providing clubs and recreation halls for the workingmen. He first came into marked prominence in 1903 as a result of a series of sermons which he delivered upon "The Sins of Society," aimed at the follies and extravagances of the well-to-do. The vigorous language of these addresses attracted large audiences, and also a remarkable course of fifteen lectures in the following year, entitled "Why Believe in Christ and Christianity?"

On the occasion of the holding of the Eucharistic Congress at Montreal in 1910 Father Vaughan was selected as the Cathedral preacher. At this period he led a life of much activity, and toured a great part of the civilised world, preaching and lecturing. He visited most of the cities of the United States, as well as parts of Canada and Alaska. Visiting Japan, Father Vaughan lectured before the Waseda and Imperial Universities of Tokio, where he also addressed the House of Peers and the ladies of Japanese society. Subsequently Father Vaughan proceeded on a lecture tour to China, and later on made tours of Italy and France. Visiting Ireland in 1914, Father Vaughan delivered a series of Lenten lectures in the Church of St. Francis Xavier, Gardiner street, Dublin, on "Jesus Christ as Guest and Host." As a mark of special favour in 1916 Father Vaughan received a letter from Pope Benedict XV., congratulating him upon his jubilee in the priesthood, and granting him the privilege of a portable altar.

HIS PUBLICATIONS.

Father Vaughan made his mark not only as a gifted preacher and lecturer, but as a writer upon many controversial subjects, religious and social. Ever unsparing in his condemnation of the follies and extravagances of the idle rich, he also displayed an intimate knowledge of the conditions of life of the working classes, which he revealed in such publications as "Socialism from the Christian Standpoint" (1913) and "The Workers' Right to Live" (1918). Among the many other works from Father Vaughan's pen were "Society, Sin and the Saviour" (1907), "What of To-day?" (1914), and "The Menace of the Empty Cradle" (1917). He was a big personality, physically and intellectually, of genial and kindly manner, and enjoyed a wide popularity among all creeds and classes.

DEATH OF MRS. ALLENBY

"REVELLED IN AIR RAIDS."

The death took place at Felixstowe, yesterday, of Mrs. Allenby, mother of Field-Marshal Lord Allenby.

She was aged 92, and until recently enjoyed good health, and retained her faculties in a remarkable degree. Her memory was excellent, and she was a lively letter-writer and a brilliant conversationalist.

Mrs. Allenby had lived for many years at Felixstowe House, a rambling building, to which she was much attached. Early in the war her friends warned her of air raids and tried to persuade her to leave Felixstowe, but she refused, and passed through three Zeppelin attacks. Lord Allenby once laughingly said: "My mother revels in air raids."

A MISSING HUSBAND

SUPPOSED CASE OF KIDNAPPING.

At yesterday's meeting of the Preston Board of Guardians, Mrs. Kelly, wife of an attendant at Ribchester Workhouse, who is herself an attendant, wrote stating that her husband had disappeared while on holidays. She out-stayed her leave for several days, to make inquiries, but discovered no news of him.

On the proposition of Sir George Toulmin, the Board decided to make official inquiry in Dublin to relieve the wife.

During the discussion it was stated that Kelly failed to keep an appointment with his wife, who was told that a tall man had taken him away. Diligent inquiry failed to trace him, and the wife assumed that her husband had been kidnapped.

The Clerk reminded the members that Kelly is still an officer of the Board, and his leave was extended without salary until he resumes duty.

MR. COPE REPLIES TO CRITICS.

WHY HE LEFT THE CIVIL SERVICE.

HIS WORK AT DUBLIN CASTLE.

SOME INNER HISTORY OF THE TRUCE.

Mr. A. W. Cope, who until recently was Assistant Under-Secretary for Ireland, and who has resigned his position in order to join forces with Mr. Lloyd George's party, made a reply to his critics in the course of an interview with a representative of the Press Association yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Cope stated that he was Assistant Under-Secretary for Ireland until Friday last, and that his salary was £2,200 a year, plus allowances.

REFORMS IN IRELAND.

"I was a permanent Civil Servant in a pensionable capacity," he continued, "having had 26 years' pensionable service. Previous to going to Ireland two and a half years ago, I was Second Secretary to the Ministry of Pensions, going there for the purpose of reorganising that Ministry, which was then in a rather disordered condition. I introduced a system which is at present being operated in that Ministry.

"I was sent over to Ireland by the permanent head of the Civil Service, and at that time the only Ministers I had any acquaintance with were those of the Ministry of Pensions.

"The Morning Post states that Mr. Lloyd George selected me. That is wrong. I did not know Mr. Lloyd George. The first time I met Mr. Lloyd George, or any other Cabinet Ministers, was in connection with the Irish question, after I had been working at Dublin Castle some time.

"I did my share in reorganising the police service, the R.I.C. transport, in fact, I took a very prominent part in setting up its transport, which developed into the most efficient organisation of its kind in Ireland.

"It was a huge concern, and kept one thousand motor vehicles of all descriptions constantly on the road, in spite of ambushes, broken roads, and everything else.

"It was frightfully heavy work.

MAKING THE TRUCE.

"I certainly was the first Civil Servant in Ireland to get in touch with Sinn Fein. As a result of my work in that respect I took a leading part in bringing about a truce. On the truce coming into operation, I was the chief liaison officer on the British side, my opposite number being Mr. E. J. Duggan, who was chief liaison officer for Sinn Fein, and who afterwards was one of the Irish signatories to the Treaty.

NO SAFE CONDUCT.

"I was present in London during the Treaty negotiations, which ended on December 6 with the signing of the Treaty.

"For the fourteen months prior to the truce, I ran not less risk than any other British servant in Ireland, and I was ambushed with the rest of them. It has been suggested in various quarters that I had a safe conduct from Sinn Fein during the time the British forces were engaged in dealing with Sinn Fein.

"That is absolutely untrue; for, as I subsequently learned, Sinn Fein knew that I was taking a prominent part in making the fighting forces as efficient as possible, and for that reason they rather had a down on me.

"They were not out to spare me. They thought I was a prominent official, and would be very good prey. After the signing of the Treaty I returned to my post in Dublin, where I remained up to the date of my resignation on Friday last.

"I have, however, made occasional trips to report to my superiors in London.

EVACUATION OF THE CASTLE.

"I was present at the winding up of the R.I.C., and took an active part in its disbandment, and at the evacuation of Dublin Castle, which I, as the British representative, had to hand over. I was entertained by the remaining officers of the R.I.C., and personally thanked by them for my efforts on their behalf in securing for them the financial terms on which they were disbanded.

"I have reason to believe that I was not thought ill of either by the R.I.C., for which force I have the greatest possible admiration, or by the British military. I always found in General Sir Nevil Macready, the Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in Ireland, a sincere friend.

"As a matter of fact, from February or March last I was the principal civil servant of the British Government remaining in Ireland.

"Throughout my two and a half years in Ireland I did my very utmost to carry out my duties as a public servant and nothing else. But, unfortunately, certain persons who are not in favour of the Treaty have attacked me in my position as public servant, and have done their best to discredit me.

MAKING FOR BLOODSHED.

"It would seem that the only way such persons have of dealing with the Irish question is by the renewal of hostilities between the two countries. If left to their own devices they would plunge England and Ireland into further bloodshed.

"I am not a politician, and have never been one. But it is clear to me, as it must be to thousands of other Englishmen who desire to see friendly relations between England and Ireland, that the sole reason for the attack on Mr. Lloyd George and the other British signatories to the Irish Treaty at the present moment is the fact that he and they were courageous enough to deal with the Irish question once and for all.

"It is because I feel this that I have joined him. It is untrue to say that I have bettered my financial position by coming to him, for, as I have pointed out, I have given up a not less remunerative post in the Civil Service, together with reasonable prospects of further advance in that service.

NO HONOURS.

"I am not now a public servant, and I do not propose to discuss further the terms of my new appointment. I regard these as a purely private matter between my employers and myself, and I should never have made any statement upon the subject but for what most people consider an unwarranted inquisitiveness into my private affairs.

"I may say quite clearly to you that there is no undertaking that I should be given an honour, no suggestion that I should be found a seat in Parliament either at this or any election in the future.

"I have chosen to give up my career in the public service to attach myself to Mr. Lloyd George, and with that I am quite content."

SIGNAL CABINS BURNED.

INCENDIARIES AT WORK ON D. AND S.E. LINE.

Armed civilians visited the railway signal cabins at Sydney parade and Sandymount avenue, on the Dublin and South-Eastern Railway, at about ten o'clock last night and set fire to the buildings.

In each case the signalman on duty was ordered out of the cabin and kept in custody by armed men with revolvers, while the other man poured petrol on the building and set it ablaze.

The men did not wait to see the full result of their work, but departed quickly when the flames sprang up.

Pembroke Fire Brigade received notice of the occurrence in each instance in time to prevent serious damage to the structures, but it is not yet known how far, if at all, the outrage will affect the train service.

A PLEDGE WANTED.

SOUTHERN IRISH LOYALISTS AND CANDIDATES.

The Southern Irish Loyalists' Relief Association, whose address is 12 Palmer street, Westminster, has decided to approach all candidates in the General Election, without distinction of party, asking them to pledge themselves to support the interests of loyalists from Southern Ireland in their claims for compensation for the damage they have suffered.

NEAR EASTERN CONFERENCE.

AMERICA'S REPLY TO INVITATION.

UNOFFICIAL ENVOYS TO BE SENT.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

The Note of the United States Government forwarded to the Allies declining the Allied invitation officially to participate in the Near East Conference, but expressing a readiness to send "observers" to the parley intimates that Washington is not disposed to allow American interest to be slighted.

The Note points out that America was neither at war with Turkey nor a party to the 1918 Armistice. The document outlined the following points, which America would like to see considered:—

1. Protection under proper guarantee of philanthropic, educational, and religious institutions.

2. Appropriate undertakings in regard to the freedom of opportunity, without discrimination of special privileges for commercial purposes.

3. Suitable provisions for the protection of minorities.

4. Assurances touching the freedom of the Straits.

5. Reasonable opportunity for archæological research and study.

Reuter's Paris Correspondent says:—The American Ambassador has handed M. Poincaré a communication expressing the views of the American Government regarding the Near East Peace Conference. America, it says, does not desire to participate in the final peace negotiations or assume responsibility regarding any political or territorial agreements reached because they were not at war with Turkey and did not take part in the Armistice of 1918. America desires to assure the policy of the open door and the protection of Americans engaged in humanitarian activities in the Levant.

RUSSIA'S ATTITUDE.

OFFENDED DIGNITY.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

MOSCOW, Tuesday.

Russia's answer to the British invitation to participate in the Dardanelles part of the Peace Conference will be at least a protest against not being invited to participate fully. Perhaps, it will be a refusal to participate altogether, if strong elements, both among the diplomats and the populations, have their way.

From the highest source it is learned that indignation is general. Speakers, addressing political meetings throughout the country, collect slips of paper with questions and views showing the great interest exhibited in foreign policy.

I am informed that Russia's answer will be ready in a day or two. "It will be more than a protest," I am told. "It is certain that Russia will insist that the inviting Powers accept her view-point that the future peace of the Black Sea Powers depends in their full equality at the Peace Conference; likewise that the Dardanelles question is inseparable.

"The diplomatic group, led by Carl Radek, considers the invitation a triumph for Russia, as showing "that Tchitcherin taught the Entente geography, that Russia is a Black Sea nation," as Radek writes in the Pravda.

The diplomats believe that the Straits discussions will include the question of the delimitation of the Turkish naval and military forces, and not the fortification of the Straits, but in whose hands the fortifications will remain.

Even the diplomatic group, which does not demand rejection, wants to know whether Russia is invited for discussions or decisions. If only for discussions, then Russia believes that the Conference will be about as useless as numerous others.

OFFICIAL REPLY.

INVITATION ACCEPTED UNDER PROTEST.

Reuter's Constantinople Correspondent telegraphed last night:—The representative of the Angora Government this afternoon presented to the French, British, and Italian High Commissioners, in the form of a verbal Note, the reply of the Angora Government to the invitation of the Allied Powers regarding the Lausanne Conference.

The following is the text of the Note:—

"The Government of the Grand National Assembly of Turkey has had the honour to receive a verbal Note from the Allied Powers, dated 27th inst., in reply to its Note of October 6, and it hastens to announce that it is ready to send plenipotentiary delegates to the Peace Conference.

"The Government of the Grand National Assembly of Turkey has proposed Smyrna as the place for the assembly of this Conference, hoping that the necessity for the Turkish delegates to correspond surely and promptly with their Government would be taken into consideration. The Turkish Government considers it necessary to draw the attention of the Allied Powers to its preference for the choice of Smyrna, so as to accelerate the negotiations. In any event, it desires to add that the previous establishment of safe and quick communication between Turkey and Lausanne would be of great importance to Turkey.

"The Government of the Grand National Assembly of Angora considers that it cannot regard as of interest to Turkey the presentation by the Allies of the Note to the Sublime Porte regarding the invitation to the Lausanne Conference. As Constantinople is only an administrative zone under inter-Allied occupation, the presence of a delegation from Constantinople at the Lausanne Conference might prevent the delegation of the Grand National Assembly from attending the said Conference.

"The Government of the Grand National Assembly considers also that the said invitation is in formal contradiction with the spirit and even the existence of the Mudania Convention."

The Greek Government, says a Reuter Athens telegram, has transmitted to the Allied Missions its acceptance of the invitation to the Lausanne Conference.

It is announced in Tokio that Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Ambassador in London, and Mr. Nagaoka, the Japanese representative in Czecho-Slovakia, will attend the Near East Conference as representatives of Japan.

Reuter's Agency is informed that the British Government is in favour of the presence of an Egyptian delegate at the Near Eastern Peace Conference.

Britain's Delegate.

It is also learned that nothing definite has been settled with regard to the British representative. It is believed that Sir Horace Rumbold, the British High Commissioner at Constantinople, will be one of the principal delegates. Sir Horace was to have been the British delegate at the Venice discussions on the Near East, and as the Lausanne Conference is merely a further discussion on a larger scale, it seems almost certain that he will go to Lausanne, particularly on the ground of his intimate connection with the questions at issue.

Lord Curzon will certainly attend the Conference, but it is unlikely that he will be able to remain throughout the discussions, which are expected to last a considerable time.

AMBUSH NEAR RED COW.

While travelling along the Naas road from Portobello about midnight on Monday national troops were ambushed near the Red Cow. Their attackers are said to have used a Thompson gun as well as automatic pistols. An officer who was with the troops was wounded in the knee, and was brought to Tallaght Camp, where he was attended to.

FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE.

The outbreak of Foot-and-Mouth disease in Surrey has led to the inclusion of East Hants and portions of West Surrey in the controlled and prohibited areas.

FROM TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

NEW MEMBERS OF THE CABINET.

NO ADVERTISEMENT NEEDED.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

With the list of further Ministerial appointments issued this morning, the Government is practically complete. Its outstanding features are the selection of Sir Samuel Hoare as Secretary of State for Air, and of Mr. Neville Chamberlain as Postmaster-General.

Sir Samuel Hoare may be trusted to discharge with conscientious intelligence the duties of his new office, while Mr. Neville Chamberlain's business experience should qualify him for the control of a department that awaits efficient management. Mr. Kellaway had certainly improved upon the record of his predecessor, which had been deplorable, but Mr. Neville Chamberlain should find little difficulty in surpassing Mr. Kellaway in practical understanding of the part a well-conducted post office may play in developing the telephone service and in restoring the postal facilities of which the business community stands in need.

As Under-Secretary for the Colonies, Mr. Ormsby-Gore should be able to give real help to the Duke of Devonshire. Mr. Ronald McNeill, as Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, will strengthen the debating power of the Ministerial front bench, and will bring to his work a greater initial knowledge of foreign affairs than many of his predecessors have possessed.

Of the other appointments little more need be said than that they are eminently respectable, and are certainly not below the level of those made by the late Government. The present Government hardly needs advertisement of that kind. What it needs is proof at the polls of the popular confidence to which its policy entitles it.

SECOND THOUGHTS.

EX-PREMIER'S RESERVES STILL IN LEASH.

The Times Parliamentary Correspondent writes:—The hundred to one hundred and fifty reserve Coalition Liberal candidates are still on the leash. They are to be employed in a counter-offensive against Unionist candidates if the Unionist attack on Coalition Liberal seats persists. Perhaps, they may not be let slip at all. They will not be, except as a last desperate measure to maintain the existence, or to exact a price for the extermination, of the Coalition Liberal Party.

The cost of "extending the war" would be very great, and one of the consequences might be the almost complete extermination of Mr. Lloyd George's party south of the Tweed.

There would be Unionist casualties as well, but by far the heaviest blow would fall on the Coalition Liberals. There was not quite the same eagerness for reprisals yesterday in Coalition Liberal quarters. The suggestion that all the 25 Unionist candidates opposing Coalition Liberals must be withdrawn as a sweet wholesale retaliation was repudiated, and it was even hinted that, if the Unionist Party attempted no further inroads on Coalition Liberal territory, there need be no open breach between Mr. Lloyd George's followers and Mr. Bonar Law's.

A restraining consideration had been introduced into the party councels overnight. Perhaps it had been brought from Scotland by Sir Robert Horne, who journeyed to London in order to confer with Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Winston Churchill.

Mr. Churchill's illness prevents his joining at present in the platform campaign, but does not debar his joining in political consultations. The new, or newly assessed, consideration appears to have been that the Coalition Liberal Party might, perhaps, not be the only party with a reserve of candidates to fling into the fighting line in case of emergency.

FASCISTI TASK ENDED.

GENERAL DEMOBILISATION ORDERED.

The Times Rome Correspondent telegraphed yesterday:—Immediately after the procession to-day, during which the Altar of the Fatherland and then the Quirinal Palace will be visited, all the Fascisti will march to the station, where they will find special trains, in which they will return home. The commanders will be held personally responsible for any act of indiscipline.

Signor Mussolini received last evening the principal Fascisti officers and emphasised the necessity of maintaining order. The Fascisti supreme command, which has moved to Tivoli from Perugia, has also ordered a general demobilisation. These measures are doubtless necessary, as, in spite of every precaution, further shooting occurred last evening in the San Lorenzo quarter, resulting in the death of seven civilians, including a woman.

The Vatican was especially guarded last night, and it is reported that the Papal troops themselves had been mobilised, and the guard at the Bronze Gates strengthened.

The Ministers took he oath of allegiance to the King this morning. Signor Mussolini said that Ministers were to be dressed in morning coats and top hats, but asked a Fascisti Minister to get one for him, as he had none.

ANGLO-SPANISH TREATY.

HELP TO BRITISH TRADE.

The Anglo-Spanish Commercial Treaty was signed yesterday, remarks The Times editorially. The event is of considerable importance at the present time in view of the opportunities in Spain for the development of British export trade; for the loss of many foreign markets owing to the war makes the cultivation of the remainder vitally necessary to the prosperity of British industry and commerce.

There has never been a most-favoured-nation treaty between Great Britain and Spain. The commercial relations of the two countries have been based upon an exchange of Notes in 1894, by which it was provided that Great Britain should enjoy the minimum tariff and all the advantages conceded to any European State. The sudden increase in many Spanish duties at the end of 1920 caused considera ble disturbance to British business, the new tariff rates on textiles and luxury goods being specially onerous.

It was natural that the great business organisations in this country should make the strongest representations to the British Government, urging the desirability of securing concessions and pointing out the value of the British market to Spanish exporters. The upshot has been the negotiation of a formal Treaty. This Treaty provides for most-favoured-nation treatment for a period of three years, thus securing to Great Britain the reduction already granted to Switzerland and France and any reductions which may be granted to any other nation.

ALLIED CONTROL TO END.

The Times Berlin Correspondent telegraphed yesterday:—An officially informed that the Allied Governments have agreed to withdraw the Inter-Allied Military Commission of Control as soon as arrangements shall have been made for winding up a few definitely outstanding matters, which were mentioned in the Inter-Allied Note of September 29. In place of the Commission of Control a small Military Guarantee Commission is to be set up.

In a German Note confirming this arrangement, the German Government lays down a condition that future control shall be confined to the subject matter of Article 213 of the Treaty of Versailles, which runs:—

"So long as the present Treaty remains in force Germany undertakes to give every facility for any investigation which the Council of the League of Nations, acting, if need be, by a majority vote, may consider necessary."

CANADIAN CATTLE.

An agreement has been reached by British and Canadian representatives, the Daily Mail Agricultural Correspondent states, with regard to the conditions under which the embargo upon Canadian cattle is to be removed.

Steers will be closely inspected before shipment, again on board ship by veterinary surgeons, and finally by officers of the British Ministry of Agriculture on landing. This is to be followed by six days detention, as now applies to Irish cattle.

As regards heifers, which might be used for breeding purposes, all imported animals are to be subjected to the tuberculin test. It is understood that these arrangements are equally satisfactory to the Canadian and British representatives. Before they can be put into force the authority of Parliament must be obtained, and it is expected that the necessary Bill will be introduced soon after the new House meets.

ELECTIONS TO THE SENATE.

BILL IN PARLIAMENT TO-DAY.

COMPENSATION TO BE SPEEDED UP.

The principal business at to-day's session of the Provisional Parliament will be the introduction by Mr. Blythe, Minister for Local Government, of a Bill regulating the election by Dail Eireann on the principle of proportional representation, of thirty members of the first Senate. The Senate—Seanad Eireann—is to consist of sixty members, thirty to be elected, and thirty to be nominated.

The Bill is non-contentious, and is not likely to give rise to much discussion.

The Minister for Finance has a motion on the agenda paper which has for its object the speeding of the hearing and determination of compensation claims.

NEW DISTRICT JUSTICE.

Mr. W. Meagher has been appointed a District Justice. He was educated at Mungret College, Limerick, admitted a solicitor in 1910, and has practised since in Templemore. He has acted as secretary to a committee appointed by the Minister of Agriculture in the distribution of the Carden estate, Templemore. He practised in the Dail Courts from their inception in the County of Tipperary. Mr. Meagher was solicitor to Templemore Urban District Council.

THE RAILWAY STRIKE.

IMPROVED SERVICES IN THE SOUTH.

There were no negotiations yesterday between the railway men and the management of the Great Southern and Western Railway Company concerning the strike of traffic hands at Kingsbridge terminus, and Mr. Bermingham, the local Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, stated that there had been no change in the situation.

While on the surface a settlement seems remote, there appears to be some ground for hope that on may come earlier than most people anticipate. The public make no secret of their displeasure at the state of affairs which is seriously affecting the trade, commerce, and agricultural industry of the South of Ireland, at a time when every effort should be made to foster and encourage Irish enterprise. They fail to see any reason why a settleme should not be made if a sensible and moderate attitude were adopted.

Fortunately, from the beginning there has been no indication of a spread of the strike outside Dublin. As a matter of fact, there were certain extension: of traffic yesterday, and more are probably to-day.

THE INCHICORE MEN.

The Inchicore engineering works remain closed. The 1,500 men who were employed there, including coppersmiths, fitters, boiler-makers, carriage and waggon builders, wood and metal workers, and labourers, a large proportion of the latter bein skilled men.

The actual number of men who are dismissed at the goods department at Kingsbridge terminus is 20, out of a staff of over 200. The management maintain that they should be the judges of the number of men that they require, and they have made clear to the men's union that when the strike took place the company's business was 45 per cent. less than it was last year, while the reduction in the staff was only 29 per cent.

In order to meet the situation, the company, as a result of Government intervention, offered to take back those men who went out without notice (although, according to their agreements with the company, the men were bound to give a week's notice) to the number that they required the redundant staff to be parted with by losing men who were last employed. It is understood that all of the twenty men in the Kingsbridge goods department who are now out have been taken into the company's employment during the present year, and that some of them had been even formally appointed.

The difficulty of the situation is accentuated by the fact that the company has to deal with three unions, who do not apparently agree with each other, nor have the three come together to meet the company. In point of fact, the demands of the two unions who were seen by the management on Monday differed materially.

LINES UNWORKED.

An Irish Times representative was informed that the work which has been done per manhour this year was 20 per cent. less than for the corresponding period of last year, and the management contradict the statement that perishable commodities were left over by the company with a view to keeping the men on short time."

The passenger train services yesterday were normal over the greater part of the system, but there were no trains between Charleville and Cork City, or between Athenry and Sligo, Sallins and Tullow, Kingsbridge and Sallins, Abbeydorney and Tralee, Fiddown and Carrick, Durrow and Mallow, Fermoy and Mitchelstown, Mallow and Tralee, or on the Kenmare, Valencia, and Castleisland branches. It is believed, however, that the line to Tralee will be open for traffic in the course of a day or two.

To-day the company hopes to institute a goods train service on the main line between Sallins and Limerick Junction, giving connections with intermediate branches.

LA TERE DECORATION.

PAPER AT ROYAL SOCIETY OF ANTIQUARIES.

At a meeting of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland held yesterday at 63 Merrion square, Dublin, Professor R. A. S. Macalister, Vice-President, proposed that the Society desired to record its regret at the loss of one of its oldest members, Mr. Richard Langrishe, and to offer its sympathy to his relatives in their bereavement.

The Chairman, Professor M. J. M'Enery, M.R.I.A., seconded the proposal, which was passed in silence.

"A Stone with La Tène Decoration recently discovered in Co. Cavan" was the title of a paper contributed by Professor Macalister. It reported the discovery of a monument bearing decorations peculiar to the La Tène period in Ireland. The stone was discovered at Moyelaugh, and it was found that the portion extending from the earth had been destroyed, leaving only that portion which was embedded in the soil. A burial crypt was previously discovered near the spot, but it was destroyed before it could be subjected to qualified examination.

Professor E. C. R. Armstrong contributed a paper on "The La Tène Period in Ireland," which dealt with the type and style of decoration then common. Lantern slides were shown, illustrating spring brooches, bell ornaments, beads, etc., all bearing the distinctive decoration of the age. The period, which was divided into three sections, extended from 500 B.C. to the Christian era, and was productive of excellent and characteristic handicraft.

TRINITY COLLEGE AND THE COLLEGE OF SCIENCE.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

The Board of Trinity College has had under consideration for some time a scheme to enable students of the College of Science to graduate in the University of Dublin. The Board has decided that the College of Science courses in Agriculture, Applied Chemistry, and Engineering do not overlap any of the courses in the University, and that the University has not the equipment to enable it to institute such courses.

The approved scheme, which has been in operation since July, 1922, necessitates the institution of two new degrees. It provides that the courses for the Associateship of the Royal College of Science shall be recognised as equivalent to professional courses in Trinity College, and that the passing of the examinations in the Royal College of Science shall be accepted as qualifications towards degrees in the University of Dublin. The University will extend to students of the College of Science, who register under this scheme, the privileges enjoyed by professional students in Trinity College.

In future students on completing his courses in the College of Science, and provided that he has qualified in Arts (professional course), in addition to an Arts degree, will be granted an appropriate professional degree without further examination by the University. Thus it will be unnecessary for the student to undergo any examination of a professional nature in addition to the College of Science examinations in order to obtain a professional degree. The degrees granted will be—(a) Agriculture Agr.B., (b) Applied Chemistry B.Sc. (Tech.), and (c) Engineering B.A.I. (Mech. or Elec.).

IRISHMEN IN MR. LAW'S GOVERNMENT.

UNDER-SECRETARYSHIPS FOR COL. W. GUINNESS & MR. R. McNEILL.

FAMOUS CRICKETER'S POST.

With the near approach of nomination day, there was great activity at all party headquarters in London yesterday, and new candidates are still being approved for constituencies throughout the country.

Important conferences were held at the National Liberal headquarters. The question of running candidates in a number of constituencies in which Unionist candidates are already in the field was seriously considered in view of the continued adoption of Unionist candidates against National Liberals.

Local Unionist Associations are interpreting Sir George Younger's letter of Saturday as implying that they are free to run Unionists in constituencies previously represented by Coalition (now National) Liberals, provided that they think it in the interests of the Unionist Party to do so.

Mr. Lloyd George takes the view that this is entirely opposed to the spirit of co-operation suggested by Mr. Bonar Law, as well as by Lord Derby and other Unionist leaders.

One of the latest instances is at Southampton, where Mr. Dudley Ward, one of Mr. Lloyd George's whips, is the candidate to whom Unionist opposition is offered. There is also Unionist opposition to two Liberal ex-Ministers.

It is stated that, should the National Liberals be forced to extend the war, there are a large number of candidates still available.

At the Unionist headquarters it is stated that the practice as regards opposition to National Liberals has never varied.

There has been no pact or understanding, the matter having been left to local associations, whose decisions have received approval as a matter of course.

Both Sir George Younger and Sir Malcolm Fraser state that no new negotiations on the subject have taken place, and they are unaware of any "ultimatum" from Mr. Lloyd George.

The Unionist Party machine is working steadily with the object of providing a majority for Mr. Bonar Law; but there is a decided spurt in the selection of Independent Liberal candidates, and it is understood that the total eventually may not fall far short of 400. The Unionist candidates now number 457.

FILLING UP THE GAPS.

MORE APPOINTMENTS BY MR. BONAR LAW.

The further appointments to the new Ministry issued to-night promise to redeem what was a rather noticeable omission in the first Cabinet list, since it contains the names of several good debaters.

Sir Samuel Hoare, Mr. Ronald McNeill, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, and Mr. Inskip are all good speakers, and several of the others are rather more than promising.

The list is also remarkable for the names of the Irishmen in it. Mr. Walter Guinness, Mr. Ronald McNeill, and Mr. Wilfred Ashley all glory in their association with Ireland.

Ministers of Labour and of Pensions are appointed, probably because it will be necessary to fill these posts until legislation can be passed dealing with the departments. The Transport Ministry is to be attached to the Office of Works, and Mr. Ashley is to preside over the twin department.

Earl Winterton retains his office as Under-Secretary for India, while Colonel Leslie Wilson remains Chief Whip.

The Hon. Francis Stanley Jackson, who becomes Financial Secretary to the War Office, is a well-known English cricketer, who has repeatedly played for the Gentlemen and All-England teams. He served in South Africa from 1900 to 1902, as Captain in the 3rd Lancashire Regiment, a Deputy Lieutenant for the West Riding of Yorkshire, a director of the Great Northern Railway Company, and has represented the Hawdenshire Division of Yorkshire in the Unionist interest since 1915.

The following is the full list of new Ministerial appointments:—

Air Ministry: SIR SAMUEL HOARE.
Minister of Labour: SIR MONTAGUE BARLOW.
Minister of Pensions: MR. G. C. TRYON.
Civil Commissioner of Works: SIR JOHN BAIRD.
Solicitor-General: MR. T. W. H. INSKIP.
Postmaster-General: MR. NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN.
Under-Secretary, Home Office: HON. G. F. STANLEY.
Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs: MR. RONALD MCNEILL.
Colonial Under-Secretary: HON. W. ORMSBY-GORE.
Under-Secretary for War: THE HON. WALTER D.S.O.
Financial Secretary to War Office: THE HON. F. S. JACKSON.
Under-Secretary, Air Ministry: THE DUKE OF SUTHERLAND.
Under-Secretary for India: EARL WINTERTON.
Financial Secretary to the Admiralty: MR. B. M. EYRES MONSELL.
Civil Lord of the Admiralty: THE MARQUIS OF LLEWELLYNOW.
Parliamentary Secretary, Overseas Trade: SIR WILLIAM JOYNSON HICKS, BART.
Parliamentary Secretary, Board of Trade: LORD WALMER.
Parliamentary Secretary, Office of Works and Transport: MR. WILFRID ASHLEY.
Parliamentary Secretary, Ministry of Health: EARL OF ONSLOW.
Parliamentary Secretary and Deputy Minister of Fisheries: THE EARL OF ANCASTER.
Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury: RIGHT HON. LESLIE O. WILSON.
Lords Commissioners: MR. H. DOUGLAS KING, D.S.O., and MR. A. BUCKLEY, D.S.O.
Under-Secretary for Health for Scotland: MR. JAMES KIRK.
Controller of the Household: MR. H. BARNSTON.
Charity Commissioner: MR. GODFREY LOCKER-LAMPSON.

THE ULSTER SEATS.

LABOUR AND A BELFAST DIVISION.

A joint meeting of the East Belfast Unionist Association was held last night for the purpose of selecting a candidate for the division at the forthcoming elections. There was considerable opposition to the selection of a Chairman, but eventually Mr. J. A. Woods was appointed. He presented the report of the Selection Committee, which was in favour of the nomination of Captain Herbert Dixon.

An amendment was moved that the meeting stand adjourned pending the decision at a meeting to-night of the Ulster Unionist Labour Association. It was emphasised that that Labour was entitled to one of the seats in Belfast. One member stated that Mr. Thompson Donald had been turned down simply because he was a Labour man.

The amendment was carried.

North and West Belfast have selected their candidates. Mr. R. J. Lynn was selected Unionist candidate for the West, and Mr. T. E. M'Connell for the North.

At a joint meeting of the representatives of the Unionist Associations of Fermanagh and Tyrone, Mr. James A. Pringle, K.C., Belfast, was unanimously selected as one of the two Unionist candidates to contest the constituency. The second candidate has not yet been definitely chosen, but it is expected that the name will be announced to-day.

The selection of the Nationalist Party regarding the election are still unknown. It is understood that they held a meeting on Saturday evening last, but no report has been issued.

A CONTEST IN DERRY.

It was learned in Derry last night that there is likely to be opposition to the Unionist candidate in Derry City and County. Mr. John Goode, of Foxhall, Letterkenny, has arrived in the city, and states that he will contest the seat in the Democratic interest. Mr. Goode, it will be recalled, put himself in nomination against Sir J. B. Dougherty, who succeeded Mr. David Hogg in 1874 in the representation of the city, owing to an irregularity in his nomination paper, it was declared invalid.

POST DECLINED.

Captain Craig had been offered the post of Vice-Chamberlain of the Royal Household and Whip in the Lloyd George Government, but has declined in order to retain a free hand as Chairman of the Ulster Unionist Parliamentary Party.

THE YPRES LEAGUE.

TO HELP POOR PERSONS TO VISIT FLANDERS.

The cornflower was conspicuous in the London streets yesterday. The little blue emblem was sold by numbers of helpers in the city and West End throughout the day in commemoration of the first battle of Ypres in 1914.

It was with the special object of assisting the funds of the Ypres League, which provides for the poor to visit the graves of their relatives in Flanders, that the sale of the floral token was made. It is the intention of the League eventually to establish at Ypres a permanent hostelry.

Throughout the morning there was a continuous pilgrimage to the Cenotaph, where many floral tributes were placed by relatives and friends of the dead. At one o'clock Princess Beatrice, after a drive through the city and West End, and a visit to the various centres of the League, drove to Whitehall and laid a beautiful commemorative wreath at the base of the memorial.

LOSS OF H.M.S. SPEEDY.

GUNNER DISMISSED HIS SHIP.

The courtmartial of Commander R. W. Wilkinson and all the officers of H.M.S. Speedy, which sunk in collision with a Dutch trawler in the Sea of Marmora on the night of September 23rd, with the loss of one officer and nine men, was held at Malta Dockyard yesterday. Captain George Trowby, of the battleship Ajax, presided.

After an all day sitting (says Reuter) the Court found that the Speedy was run down by the Dutch trawler Karabyho owing to the latter not displaying visible port lights.

The Court further found Gunner Hector Charles Stanton guilty, under Section 9 of the Naval Discipline Act, of negligently performing his duties. He was dismissed his ship, and reprimanded. All the other surviving officers were acquitted.

Sir Alfred Mond, adopted as Liberal candidate for Swansea, West, announced himself "a free trader unshackled and untrammelled."

POINTS FROM LAST NIGHT'S SPEECHES.

SIR L. WORTHINGTON EVANS:

If the election enables Mr. Bonar Law to form a Government, I will, of course, give him my support. If, on the other hand, no party obtains a sufficient majority to enable it to form a Government by itself, I hope there will be co-operation between Conservatives and the National Liberals. In such an event I shall support such co-operation.

SIR DONALD MACLEAN:

The drama is being played out between the first and the second class brains. In politics Mr. Lloyd George and Lord Birkenhead said first class brains are required for a first class job. But first class brains have been at work for four years, and the affairs of the country at home and abroad are in a sorry mess. Not merely inefficiency is required in a Government, but a steady policy, carried out by honest men prepared to stand by principles regardless of the consequences.

MR. BRIDGEMAN (Home Secretary):

Mr. Lloyd George was a champion in the art of fighting during the war, but these are not times when war is much hustling. We need something less exciting and less sensational.

It is untrue that the Under Secretaries plotted to get promotion. They were prepared to go across the wilderness if the voting at the Carlton Club had been different.

MR. ASQUITH:

The late House of Commons will live in history as a monumental example of Parliamentary subservience. We have been living under a dictatorship of curves and zigzags, of advances and recoils, and of organised instability.

There has never been anything so grotesque as the electoral situation. The so-called pact means merely the revival of the Coalition under an alias. The electorate must be mad if they are cajoled by political legerdemain into a repetition of the experiment.

LORD ROBERT CECIL:

I do not see much to object to in the Independent Liberal programme, but the Labour programme contains some good and some decidedly bad things. Nationalisation means Government management from Whitehall offices, which is impossible without disaster to the country. As to capital levy, the money ultimately came from the pockets of the people. To say that it is a decisive. War debts are kept alive by international suspicion and hostility, and must be settled courageously and generously as between the nations.

MR. CHURCHILL BUSY.

FLOW OF LETTERS FROM SICK ROOM.

Mr. Winston Churchill is making good progress. Yesterday he was able to leave the nursing home where he was operated on for appendicitis about a fortnight ago, but he will be confined to his room for some time yet. He is following the course of events with the keenest interest, and spends a considerable time every day in writing to Mr. J. C. Robertson, President of the Dundee Liberal Association.

Yesterday Mr. Robertson received a letter, in which Mr. Churchill said that Lord Wodehouse, his political secretary, would reach Dundee to-morrow and represent him on the Election Committee. He felt sure, he said, that Lord Wodehouse, as the grandson of the late Lord Kimberley, the leader of the Liberal Party in the House of Lords in Mr. Gladstone's palmy days, would be welcomed by the Liberals of Dundee, and that, as the brilliant polo player who so stubbornly sustained the cause of Britain against the United States he would find many friends among the sportsmen of the North.

Mr. Churchill added that he hoped to be in Dundee for the last few days of the campaign.

Writing on the subject of economy, Mr. Churchill claims that enormous "cuts" were made last year on civil and military expenditure, and that by his administration of Palestine and Mesopotamia he contributed a saving of nearly £30,000,000, compared with the days when Lord Curzon ruled over the Middle Eastern Committee.

Again, entrusted with the chairmanship of the Committee on Services Estimates, he was able to recommend considerable reductions on naval expenditure, but was obstinately opposed by the Financial Secretary to the Admiralty, whose promotion to the office of his late chief he viewed with disquietude.

He understood that Sir Robert Horne had effected an additional reduction of over £22,000,000 in civil expenditure, and he saw himself the prospect of a further reduction of £15,000,000 in military services, after making allowance for a slight increase in the Air Force.

All this work had been interrupted by Mr. Bonar Law's seizure of the Premiership. Mr. Churchill added that he had effected a further reduction of £5,000,000 in Palestine and Mesopotamia for the 1922-1923 estimates, and with these savings, and others in view before the presentation of the estimates, he regarded as disappointing Mr. Baldwin's declaration that he saw no prospect of a further reduction in taxation.

In another communication Mr Churchill condemned the proposed abolition of the Ministry of Pensions, despite the support of Lord Haldane, and hoped that Mr Bonar Law would withdraw from the position that he has taken up.

GERMANY FACING STARVATION.

SHORT OF FOOD AND COAL.

CHANCELLOR'S APPEAL TO POWERS.

Reuter's Berlin Correspondent telegraphed yesterday:—

The Reparations Commission was received at noon by the Chancellor, who welcomed the members, and expressed his pleasure at seeing M. Barthou, the new Chairman of the Commission. He also commended their initiative in bringing creditors and debtors together, and referred to the changes which had taken place in Germany since the demands of the Guarantee Committee were made in June.

He said that the German nation, which was short of food and coal supplies, was confronted with a winter of starvation and cold. He added that he regarded the stabilisation of the mark as the most essential problem to be dealt with, as it would in itself tend to restore the equilibrium of German State finances.

The principal task was to arrive at practical proposals, and to carry them out with promptitude and decision. Action alone could save the situation and Germany's productive capacity.

M. Barthou explained the reasons which had induced the Reparations Commission to enter into direct communication with the German Government. He said that he appreciated the Chancellor's words the more highly, as they came from a most qualified personage.

The Commission held its first sitting this evening.

ULSTER'S DEMANDS.

DELEGATES ARRIVE IN ENGLAND.

Seventy delegates from Ulster arrived at Euston yesterday afternoon to open a campaign among the British electorate for securing pledges to safeguard the interests of the North of Ireland. Altogether two hundred workers from Ulster are now in the country.

The whole party arrived at Liverpool on Monday, and "a wonderful send-off from Belfast," said a delegate. "The delegation is not over here on any political mission," he went on. "We are not going to take the platform of any candidate as against another. Our one aim is to get pledges for our country."

The Duchess of Abercorn, representing the Ulster Unionist Women's Council; Lady Carson, representing Lord Carson, and Mr. J. J. M'Cullough, on behalf of the Ulster Association for Peace with Honour, were present on the platform when the train steamed in. Cheers were raised for the Duchess and Lady Carson. Every one in the party seemed keen on the mission, and they included among them many able speakers and protagonists. Each delegate was armed with a printed copy of a letter, written by Sir James Craig. The opening paragraph of the letter stated that it was important to emphasise that Ulster now and always had desired, and would continue to desire to remain, part and parcel of the British Empire.

The Ulster deputations in Glasgow have received pledges from Mr. W. Ramsay, the Conservative candidate, and Mr. J. D. MacNaughton, the Municipal candidate for the Parkhead division. Sir W. Mitchell Thomson, Unionist candidate for another Glasgow division, has also given an undertaking to stand by Ulster.

ORIEL HOUSE EXPLOSION.

COMPOSITION OF THE MINES.

Oriel House, Westland Row, Dublin, where the explosion took place on Monday night, was visited by hundreds of people yesterday. The effects of the big bang were to be seen everywhere in that part of the street. In Oriel House itself the shattered windows and broken roller shutter at the main entrance told their own tale. Tradesmen were busy in the street during the day repairing broken windows and doors.

In shops in Lincoln Place, Westland Row, and Lower Merrion street the windows had been blown in. Work went on as usual in Oriel House yesterday.

The three unexploded mines, which were taken away and examined by experts yesterday, weigh about 30 pounds each. They are circular pieces of iron eighteen inches long and nine inches in diameter, and are charged with gelignite and another explosive called "Wallflower."

During the day a message was received by the Director of Oriel House from Mr. Kevin O'Higgins, Minister for Home Affairs, complimenting the men of the Criminal Investigation Department on the splendid coolness and courage that they displayed in the face of such a nerve racking ordeal.

Shopowners, whose premises were open at the time of the explosion, declare that they were so stunned by the explosion that they could not describe what happened afterwards. They were left almost speechless.

ELECTION LITERATURE.

ANTI-WASTE M.P.'S SUIT FOR LIBEL.

Mr. James Malcolm Monteith Erskine, of Eccleston square, the Independent Conservative member for St. George's, Westminster, in the last Parliament, was the plaintiff in an action for damages for libel in the Lord Chief Justice's Court, London, yesterday. A special jury was empanelled. He claimed against J. H. Johnston, bill, printers and publishers of the Westminster Record and West London News, and Mr. A. J. Tydeman, the secretary and agent of the St. George's Conservative Association. Mr. Erskine contended that he was libelled in the November, 1921, issue of the Record and West London News of April 22 last, and in a pamphlet circulated throughout the constituency.

Sir Hugh Fraser, for Mr. Erskine, said that Mr. Tydeman was closely associated with Colonel Leslie Wilson, an official Conservative, who was now opposing Mr. Erskine in the constituency. The article to which Mr. Erskine took exception stated that "his tactics are such as to call for the scorn and condemnation which such underhand tactics are entitled to receive," and that he could not confine himself to truth. "Has he been guilty of a dirty trick? This is the question which the jury has to decide," added Sir Hugh.

The defence denied that the words published bore the meaning put upon them by Mr. Erskine, and pleaded that the facts stated were true and the comment fair.

Mr. Erskine's counsel said that when the St. George's Conservative (non-Coalition) Association appealed to the electorate to return Mr. Erskine again to Parliament the Coalitionists immediately attacked Mr. Erskine.

The hearing was adjourned.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

MAN KILLS WOMAN WITH A HAMMER.

A shocking case of murder and suicide is reported from the moorland village of Ogden, five miles from Rochdale, the victims being Mrs. Bertha Fletcher, widow (34), of Pioneer Villa, Newbury, and Thomas Widdup (28), of Denshaw, a married man who had been living apart from his wife.

Mrs. Fletcher was working at Wicken Hall print works, Ogden, when, it is alleged, she was attacked by Widdup with a hammer and left unconscious on the floor. She died from wounds on the head in Rochdale Infirmary.

Widdup, after the attack, drowned himself in a small reservoir.

Widdup was only recently released from imprisonment for non-compliance with a maintenance order which was issued upon a summons by his wife. He had been on friendly terms with Mrs. Fletcher for a considerable time.

MR. HATTON DEVEREUX WHYTE.

We are asked by the friends of Mr. Hatton Devereux Whyte to state that there is absolutely no foundation whatever for the story that he was found drowned in the Seine in Paris on Friday. The report has given them great pain and they hasten to contradict it.

The real facts are that the young man was seen on the banks of the Seine carrying a portmanteau. Subsequently the portmanteau was found with a suit inside. The young man, Mr. Whyte, was, however, seen walking away differently dressed afterwards. It is hoped, now that the misunderstanding has been cleared up, that he will save further anxiety and communicate with his friends in Paris.

CIVIC GUARD REQUESTED TO WITHDRAW.

INCIDENT AT PETTIGO.

A Northern Correspondent writes:—On Saturday a detachment of the new Civic Guard, under Commander MacManus, motored from Letterkenny (Co. Donegal) to Pettigo. They intended to police the little border village, as they are doing elsewhere throughout the Free State.

When the troops entered the village they were met by the officer in charge of the British forces, who asked their business.

Commander MacManus briefly stated his authority, but the British officer said that he held this area under orders.

It was pointed out that Pettigo was in the Free State. This argument was unavailing, and the Civic Guard was requested to withdraw, which was done.

It is stated that the Provisional Government takes a serious view of the incident.

PRICE OF BREAD.

INTERESTING CASE FROM CORK.

The following letter, signed by the Vice-Guardians of Cork Union and printed in the Cork Examiner of October 24, sheds an interesting light on the price of bread in Cork:—

SIR,—With reference to the figures given in your paper under the heading, 'Price of Bread in Cork,' the following may interest the public generally:—

"The price paid for flour at Cork Workhouse during the week ending 21st October was 43s. 0d. per sack, delivered—the quality being first-grade Cork patent flour, and produce of the mills of Messrs. Shaw and Sons and J. W. McMullen, Ltd. The cost of producing at Cork Workhouse a 4lb. loaf (scaling full weight—18 hours after baking) was less than 7½d. per pair for this quality of bread. It is produced by trade union labour, without the aid of machinery, and is baked in antiquated ovens.

"We find, however, from a perusal of thousands of documents received here in connection with the distribution of emergency relief, that the price paid for fresh bread at the counters of shops all over the city is generally 11d. per pair, but in many cases 11½d. per pair. In most cases the price charged is 10½d. per pair, while in rare instances the figure is as 'low' as 10d. We are naturally interested in seeing that relief—emergency and otherwise—should go as low as possible, and we are surprised that during the period between 1st August and 15th October, in which the price of flour, as used in Cork Workhouse, fell from 51s. to 43s. per sack, a corresponding reduction of one penny per 4lb. loaf should not have resulted."

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

CHARGE AGAINST A DOCTOR.

The case of Dr. Bernard Hartshorne, the doctor of the rich Chiswick widow, whose body was recently exhumed, who is under remand on a charge of attempting to commit suicide by taking poison, was mentioned at Clerkenwell (London) Police Court, yesterday.

Mr. Powell (instructed by Messrs. Bull and Bull) for the defence, made application to the magistrate that, instead of the further hearing of the case being held that day as had been previously arranged a further adjournment might be granted, as the defence were not yet in a position to meet the evidence which would be given. The Director of Public Prosecutions had given his consent, Mr. Powell added, and Mr. Roland Oliver, for the prosecution, raised no objection.

Asked why he made his application yesterday, Mr. Powell replied: "To avoid the expense and trouble of bringing witnesses to-morrow, and to get you as early notice as possible."

The application was granted and the hearing was adjourned until next week.

SHIPYARD WAGES.

MEN SEEK MODIFICATION OF MASTERS' PROPOSALS.

The Shipbuilding Employers' Federation yesterday consented to receive a deputation on Friday next from the shipyard trade unions on the question of the proposal to withdraw the remaining 10s. of the 25s. 6d. war bonus.

Although the proposal was recently balloted against, there was no two-thirds majority for a stoppage, and the object of the deputation is to secure a modification of the proposal in view of the continued high cost of living and the rates of wages for similar craftsmen in other industries.

EX-KAISER'S BRIDE INTERVIEWED.

"NOT MARRYING FOR MONEY."

ECONOMY AT DOORN.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Tuesday.

"The Kaiser is one of the most generous, most kind-hearted men in the world, and this is one of the many reasons that will induce me to marry him," said Princess Hermine Schoenaich Carolath in an interview with a German journalist.

Doubting the authenticity of the interview, I wired the bride-elect of the ex-Kaiser, and received full confirmation of the authenticity in a telegram from Princess Hermine Schoenaich Carolath, personally.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT.

"Friends in attendance on the Kaiser," said the Princess, "invited me to Doorn. From the beginning I knew I loved the Kaiser. When the rumour of a possible marriage reached the Crown Prince he came to Doorn, and, in the friendliest way, talked over the matter with me.

"He warned me, 'You don't know my father; he's a very good man, but sometimes he is hard to get on with.'

"After some weeks the Crown Prince came to me again, saying, 'I have watched you all this time, and feel it my duty to tell you that my warning was wrong. You know how to manage people, and the whole situation here.'

MANY RIVALS.

"I naturally had a hard stand. All the friends and the so-called friends of the Kaiser had their own plans. It is well known that several prominent women thought of marrying the Kaiser, such as Frau von Rochow and the widow of King Wuertemberg, as well as Princess Mecklenburg, who nearly smothered the Kaiser in letters.

"The Kaiser is not rich like people think. Therefore, nobody can say I am marrying him for money. Doorn is being run on the most economical principles. Sometimes the meals are so scant it almost looks poor.

"I will adhere to the principles of the strictest economy. I am happy to say I have acquired the friendship of most of the children of the Kaiser. The Crown Princess still fears I might try to obtain some of the prerogatives which were given to her at the death of the former Empress Kaiserin, such as the distribution of charity funds of the Hohenzollern Treasury.

QUEEN OF PRUSSIA.

"The Kaiser wanted to force her to give up this prerogative in my favour, but I asked him not to. I don't want any extra titles or rights. I don't want to obtain any advantages for myself and my children.

"Therefore, everything has been specified in the marriage contract. I will have the title of the Queen of Prussia. I have signed a guarantee that I will be allowed to spend eight weeks in Germany in order to keep close touch with my three children, who are remaining in Germany, and administer my estates.

"I will leave for Doorn on November 1st, taking my Henriatta along; the others will go later."

A QUIET WEDDING.

The Princess patted a child who was sitting on her lap. Henriatta is a gay, lively child, who, according to her mother, greeted the news of the wedding with these words, "Mother, it is wonderful to have a new father."

The Princess continued, "One of the things I have enjoyed most was the understanding shown by my children when I told them of the wedding. The wedding will be quiet; none but the closest friends and relatives will be present. The Kaiser, Princes, and officers will wear gala uniform. Hindenburg and Ludendorff will not be present."

The Princess hereupon closed the interview, by again voicing the joy felt at the prospective marriage.

£40,000 WEDDING PRESENT.

According to the Forwärts, the ex-Kaiser's present to his bride will be a diadem, set with seven hundred brilliants, and ear-rings, costing in all 800,000,000 marks (roughly £40,000 at present exchange rate). The paper adds that the order has been placed with Berlin jewellers.

MURDER CHARGE FAILS.

MOTHER'S ACCOUNT OF THE DEATH OF HER CHILD.

At the Old Bailey yesterday, Edith Annie Greenwood (23) married, was found not guilty of the murder of her two months' old daughter, and was discharged.

The prosecution's case was that according to the accused woman's own statement she was living apart from her husband, staying at a Paddington hotel with a baby and a two-year-old boy. She found the former on the morning of September 21st almost suffocated under the pillow on which the baby was lying. She nursed it all night, and next day when she tried to revive it by placing it in a warm bath, it collapsed and died. Becoming alarmed at not having acquainted the people in the hotel of the child's ill ness she laid the body in a brown paper parcel. Afterwards she stated that she had taken the child to some friends at Westbourne Grove, but instead, took the parcel to Chatham, where she met a male friend On her departure after a week's stay with her son, the body was found in a drawer in a vacant room.

Medical examination ascribed death to suffocation, and the prisoner maintained that the only suffocation was the accidental suffocation on September 1st. The medical opinion was that her account of the death was untrue. To the police she maintained her innocence, saying that she was fond of her children, and to her male friend, who thought that the boy was her only child, she wrote to the same effect.

The prisoner on oath admitted the concealment, saying that she was distracted and intended to take her own life, but the boy recalled her to herself.

Mr Justice Roche, summing up in the prisoner's favour, remarked on the consistency of her story at the police station, on arrest, and in court.

THE LATE MR. WAL PINK.

Much public interest was taken in the funeral yesterday at Tooting Cemetery of the late Mr. Wal Pink, variety singer and producer of revues. Wreaths were received from a great number of variety artists, many of whom had appeared in his various productions.

From Joe O'Gorman and Joe Elvin there was a large wreath composed of pink carnations forming his christian name, "Wal," and pink flowers figured conspicuously in many of the other wreaths. Mr. Albert de Courville sent a wreath inscribed, "No one will ever take his place. No one will ever be so staunch, so loyal, so true."

BUENOS AYRES CATTLE.

BREEDERS' PROPOSALS.

A telegram from Buenos Ayres says that a number of important cattle breeders met yesterday and adopted proposals, which had been submitted by Deputy Senor Pagas, for the improvement of the situation in the cattle industry. These proposals include the passage of an Anti-Trust law the nationalisation of the cold storage industry, and the fixing of minimum prices for cattle and meat for export.

REPUBLICAN OFFENSIVES.

CLIFDEN GARRISON OVERPOWERED.

QUEENSTOWN UNDER FIRE.

Vigorous attacks on National troops are reported from both West and South.

At Clifden, County Galway, 350 Republicans on Sunday attacked the National garrison—about 100 men—at the town barracks and the Hill depôt. They blew up the latter post and burned the barracks, the garrison surrendering after a ten hours' fight.

Claremorris (County Mayo) has also been attacked.

On Sunday night Republicans, who took cover in a wood, launched a vigorous attack on the National posts at the lodge and school. The fire was so heavy that the National troops were unable to venture out until the attackers withdrew.

COUNTY GALWAY.

A TEN-HOURS' FIGHT.

NATIONAL GARRISON FORCED TO SURRENDER.

News reached Limerick last evening, says our Correspondent, of a desperate encounter at Clifden, County Galway, which was stormed, it is learned, by a force of Republicans yesterday.

It would appear that the main object of the attack was the capture of the garrison's and its accoutrements. There was a fierce and prolonged engagement, culminating in the partial capture of the garrison. Eleven, at least, of the troops were wounded.

It is believed that the Republican casualties were considerable.

Our Galway Correspondent telegraphs:—The people of Clifden on Sunday last witnessed a thrilling fight between a strong Republican column, estimated to number 350, and the national garrison, about 100 all told, in the town barracks and on an outpost on the hill, for the possession of the capital of Connomara.

Fighting began at 7 o'clock in the morning, and had not concluded until 5 p.m., by which time the town barracks had been burned, the hill barracks had been blown up by mines, one Republican and one national soldier had been killed, several had been wounded on both sides, and nearly eighty members of the national garrison captured, with the rifles and the small supply of ammunition that had survived the ten-hour fight.

Details of the fight have been obtained from the garrison at the Marconi Station, which had become untenable after the posts at Clifden had been taken. This little garrison valiantly fought its way to the relief of the town, losing one killed, and killing one irregular and capturing two on the route. Ultimately it was forced to retire, and the great body got away with its arms and reached Galway.

It is now stated that an attack on Clifden on a large scale had been contemplated for some days by the Republicans, who had improvised an armoured car for the purpose. Without this they would never have been able to approach the barracks.

THE SURRENDER.

As it was, the car was disabled and the garrison in Clifden fought to the last. Commandant O'Malley and Lieutenant Joyce continuing to fire from the blazing building long after most of the other members of the garrison had surrendered. Commandant O'Malley, when ultimately he left the barracks to surrender, found that a wounded comrade had been unable to get out of it, and dashed back to rescue him. The rescue was effected, and the surrendered garrison was congratulated by the Republican leader on its gallant stand.

The story of the recapture of Clifden, from which the Republicans were driven some months ago, forms one of the most thrilling episodes in the recent fighting in Ireland. The news reached Galway late on Monday, but particulars were not available until yesterday, when a newspaper representative saw Commandant A. Brennan, who explained that he was still without full particulars, but had a good general knowledge of what had happened.

It would appear from the despatches which had reached him that the two barracks—the one in the town of Clifden, and the one outside on the hill—were attacked by Republicans simultaneously, at seven o'clock on Sunday morning. In approaching the town barracks the attackers used an improvised armoured car as a cover for the purpose of laying mines to blow up the barracks. It manœuvred slowly towards the building, the occupants firing all the time, whilst the troops in the barracks kept up a continuous fire on the car, but few grenades being used.

When within what was regarded as a safe distance of the barracks the car stopped, presumably to put down the mines. The attackers then called on the troops to surrender, but the reply was a hail of bullets from the barracks.

The car again moved towards the barracks wall, the intention apparently being to blow it in with a mine. A hand grenade thrown from the barracks by Corporal Fallon put the car out of action. The fighting, however, was continued, and towards evening it was seen that the barracks was on fire.

The Republicans again called for a surrender, but a refusal was expressed by increased firing from the soldiers in the burning building.

BUILDING DOOMED.

THE GARRISON AT LENGTH SURRENDERS.

It was plain now that the building was doomed, and Commandant O'Malley directed the men to surrender, so that they might save their lives, but expressed his own determination to keep on fighting. The men slowly issued from the burning building, begrimed with powder, and were taken prisoners. Meanwhile, Commandant O'Malley and Lieutenant Joyce, although called on several times to surrender, refused, and continued to fight, running from one burning room to another. When it was clear that there was no hope left, they decided to surrender, and were taken prisoners, a Republican, who appeared to be a leader, shaking hands with both when they emerged from the doomed building.

Fighting of a similar character was kept up at the other barracks on the hill. About 4 p.m. there was a terrific explosion, and portions of the walls and roof were seen to fall. The defenders inside were buried in the débris, but, remarkable to relate, though several of them received minor injuries, none of them was killed. The men here, of whom there were only 28, under Lieutenant Duffy, were taken prisoners.

MARCONI GARRISON'S DASH.

Troops in the Marconi station, about two miles away, who rushed to the assistance of their comrades, came into conflict with the Republican forces, and in the ensuing fight one National soldier—Thomas Connelly, of Clynagh Costello—was killed, and some others were injured; while one Republican was killed and two were captured.

The Republican forces are stated to have come from Sligo and Mayo, and to have been augmented by Connemara men.

The principal object of the attack on Clifden was to secure arms and ammunition. Most of the arms of the National troops, however, were put out of action, and only 200 rounds are known to have been left in the Hill Barrack.

COUNTY MAYO.

CLAREMORRIS FIGHT.

FIRING FROM MANY POINTS; SENTRY DISARMED.

On Saturday night at 9.20 o'clock Republican forces surrounded Claremorris, and in small groups of three and four took up positions, from which they attacked the sentries in various parts of the town, the fire coming coming from corners, laneways and unoccupied buildings. The assault continued for three hours, rifles, revolvers and grenades being used. Windows were broken and doors riddled, and sandbags, behind which the outposts took cover, were cut here and there with bullets. Near the Imperial Hotel two sentries were overpowered and disarmed, one of them—Private Devin—receiving a wound in the hand, and the other a slight injury.

At the same time fire was opened on the military headquarters at the Workhouse, but with no effect, as the attack was from long range.

The attackers must have been in large numbers. The assault was unexpected, Claremorris having been so quiet for the past six weeks, and quite a number of people were unable to get home until the firing ceased about one o'clock in the morning.

Dean Macken on Sunday denounced the attack.

CORK DISTRICT.

STREET BOMBING.

VIGOROUS ATTACK ON QUEENSTOWN.

Monday, says our Cork Correspondent, did not pass without further bomb attacks. At about 6 o'clock in the evening a bomb of the Mills pattern was thrown in MacCurtain street at two private touring cars containing national troops. It is stated that the Rev. Dr. Scannell, Chaplain to the Forces, was in one of the cars. The missile missed the cars, and, though the street was filled with people, no one was injured. A fragment of a bomb went through the window of a public-house, and narrowly missed some customers in the bar.

At about half-past nine o'clock there was excitement at the Grand Parade, near its junction with Washington street. It appears that a crowd tried to rush a cinema which exhibited a version of Dante's "Inferno," and the Civic patrol had to call on the troops to disperse the crowd, who could not get into the cinema. On their arrival a bomb was thrown, without, however, doing any damage. The crowd on the street was so large that the troops had to fire in the air to clear it.

On Monday afternoon Volunteer Jerry O'Sullivan, national Army, was accidentally shot dead at Cork Male Prison.

Republicans yesterday morning attacked a national military post which was guarding a railway viaduct at Monard, near Cork. They used a Lewis gun. One national soldier was killed before the troops dispersed the attackers. Pursuing them, the troops wounded two and captured some arms and ammunition.

A flying column visited Queenstown on Sunday night, and made a desperate attack on the national troops who occupy Belvelly schoolhouse and Lord Barrymore's lodge, Fota Island.

The attack began at 12 midnight, and from that hour until five o'clock on Monday morning the fire of machine guns and rifles continued with hardly a moment's interval.

The attack was directed from the woods, which face the lodge and school. It was so intense that the troops were unable to leave their quarters without courting certain death, and consequently their efforts were confined to the sending of a rocking fire into the woods. In order to get to the wood the troops in the schoolhouse would have had to cross a bridge on the main road, but the hail of lead which fell there during the attack was so great that they dared not venture to attempt it.

In the lodge, which was at the other end of the bridge and nearest to the wood, there was only a handful of men, but these could not move out without the support of the larger body from the schoolhouse. In the circumstances, they swept the woods with machine gun and rifle fire until five o'clock on Monday morning, when the Republicans withdrew.

The national troops suffered no casualties, and so far, no casualties on the Republican side have been reported. The school and the lodge are riddled with bullets.

COUNTY LOUTH

DUNDALK'S HOT NIGHT.

ARMS AND AMMUNITION FOUND IN HAGGARD.

After a week of comparative peace, shooting broke out in Dundalk on Monday night, and from midnight until daybreak there was the constant noise of machine gun, rifle and revolver fire, punctuated at intervals by the bursting of bombs close to the town. On the stroke of midnight the attack commenced, and from the Ardee and Carrickmacross roads fire was opened on the post at the County Jail. Simultaneously an attack was made on the guard on the Post Office, in Clanbrassil street, and also on the soldiers doing duty at the big bridge on the main Belfast-Dublin road. The latter was the most serious attack, and for hours a constant fire, coming from several directions, was directed at the guard.

The military replied with machine guns, and succeeded in stopping the main shooting, but sniping continued all night. It was feared that the bursting of the bombs—they all exploded shortly after midnight—was an attack upon troops. Inquiries yesterday morning, however, elicited the information that the bombs had not been thrown at any of the patrols, but had been discharged on the main Newry road some distance from the town. Except for causing some damage to the roadway, little harm was done. In all the attacks the troops did not sustain any casualties.

It is reported that the road bridge at Ballymascanlon, between Dundalk and Greenore, has again been blown up. This bridge had just been repaired.

On Monday evening a small bomb was found in the Income Tax Office, situated in the Market House. The bomb had been taken into the place by the raiders, who came with petrol, but who decamped without carrying out their object. Mr. T. C. Breen, the Taxes Inspector, who was shot by one of the raiders when he bolted the office door, is progressing favourably in the County Infirmary.

Raiders were busy during the night in other directions. On the railway line between Dundalk and Inniskeen eleven telegraph poles were cut. A big "find" is reported by national troops in the village of Knockbridge, three miles from Dundalk. On Monday evening a party of soldiers visited the place on the look-out for a "wanted" man. A search of his house proved fruitless, and the troops commenced a search of his father's haggard. In a haystack were found five boxes, which contained a land mine, with cable attached; five Lee Enfield rifles, five Mauser rifles, 12 tins of "Irish cheddar," one parabellum automatic, 15 Mills grenades (G.H.Q. pattern), 500 rounds of .303 ammunition and 200 rounds of revolver ammunition, 500 electric detonators, first aid outfits, bandoliers, belts, etc.

COUNTY LIMERICK

WAYSIDE ATTACKS.

SHOOTINGS, ESCAPES AND CAPTURES.

A man, whose name is given as John Baggot, was shot dead yesterday while endeavouring to escape from the custody of seven National soldiers, who were conducting some searches in the Castleconnell district. According to information received here (says our Limerick Correspondent), the troops left Castleconnell on bicycles in the afternoon, taking the main road towards Birdhill. Arriving at Groag Hill, two miles out, they proceeded to carry out some searches.

On approaching one of the houses in the district, fire was directed on the soldiers from other premises. The soldiers, taking cover, replied to the fire. The Republicans are said to have used a machine gun and rifles. The sounds of the firing were heard in Castleconnell, and reinforcements were despatched to the assistance of the cycling party. Some time previous to their arrival, however, the majority of the attackers had retired.

In a search of the houses some prisoners were taken, among them Baggot. He was placed in the custody of a guard while the other houses were being searched. While alone with his guard, the prisoner attempted to wrench a soldier's rifle from him. On the approach of two other soldiers, he endeavoured to get away. He was fired on and fatally wounded. The troops had no casualties.

Troops operating in West Limerick took eight prisoners. The captures were made in various districts near the Kerry border.

While a patrol of national troops was travelling towards Charleville on Monday night a number of men were seen driving in a horse and trap. On seeing the troops the men jumped from the car, and, taking up positions about the roadside, fired on the soldiers with a Thompson gun. After a sharp exchange of fire, the men made their escape. Sergeant Murphy and Sergeant-Major Hickey were slightly wounded.

NATIONAL SOLDIER'S DEATH.

Mr. McNeice, Coroner, Limerick City, on Monday evening resumed the inquest at the Town Hall on Daniel Nevin, private in the national Army, who it is alleged, received a fatal blow in a city public-house on Thursday last from John Bond, a travelling tinker. Bond has been remanded on a charge of manslaughter.

Dr. J. G. Holmes stated that, as a result of a post-mortem examination, he found that all Nevin's internal organs were healthy, but his left lung was adhering to the chest. The heart auricles were distended with blood, but the heart muscle itself appeared to be sound. Death, in his opinion, resulted from syncope, the result of the heart's action, due to inhibition, probably caused by a blow over the solar plexus.

Dr. W. Mulcahy concurred, and the jury found that death resulted from blows inflicted by John Bond.

RAILWAY BRIDGE DESTROYED.

On Monday night a railway bridge near Kilmorna, between Abbeyfeale and Listowel, was burned down, with the result that traffic is suspended in that section.

COUNTY TIPPERARY.

BANSHA ARRESTS.

During a round-up by troops from Emly in the Latin district of County Tipperary on Monday, Michael Ryan, Bauleen, a prominent local Republican, was arrested. There was a good deal of firing in Bansha after midnight and early yesterday morning, but no casualties or damage were reported.

Further particulars in connection with the arrest of Michael Ryan at Lattin show that three men were in a house in the village when a party of national troops suddenly arrived. An exchange of shots took place. Two men escaped from the house through a field and Ryan was captured.

SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC.

THIRTY CASES IN POPLAR WORKHOUSE.

Up to yesterday 25 cases of smallpox had been reported from the Poplar Workhouse. There were five new cases yesterday—one officer and four inmates. All the infected persons have been removed to the Long Reach Isolation Hospital, Dartford.

Also in the Hospital are seven people from other London districts—one from Bexley, one from Stepney, where there were several cases about six weeks ago; one from Fulham, and four from Dartford.

The last epidemic of smallpox in Poplar occurred in 1902.

PEER AND COST OF BREAD.

NO RELATION TO PRICE OF WHEAT.

FARMERS' DEMAND FOR REFORM.

"Bread is being sold on the basis of a wheat price twice as high as that existing."

Lord Bledisloe made this declaration at a meeting of the Council of the Central and Associated Chambers of Agriculture, held at Westminster yesterday, under the chairmanship of Mr. M. G. Townley. Lord Bledisloe moved the addition of the following new clause in the Council's legislative programme:—

"That the current price of bread bear some definite relation to the current price of wheat."

In spite of the low prices of agricultural produce, he said the high costs charged to the consumer were preventing them from giving as large a wage as they would like to agricultural workers, many of whom, in many districts, were in a state of semi-destitution. There had been in the past Bread Acts in Great Britain, and the time had come for a new one on the lines of his motion.

The motion was carried.

An item on the programme previously adopted read—"That the importation of live stock be maintained," and on this the Chairman observed that they wished to forward trade with the Colonies, and he hoped that the relinquishment of the embargo would be limited to cattle coming from within the Empire.

After considerable discussion, the Chairman said that, unfortunately, they had been unsuccessful in their fight for the embargo on Canadian cattle, and his own point of view was that they had to bow to the inevitable. They hoped that ample safeguards would be put in the new bill.

TREES IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Dr. Gogarty's letter on Irish trees might well be reprinted at weekly intervals until people realise that, though Nature offers no short cuts to wealth, she has endowed Ireland with marvellous forest possibilities. Dr. Gogarty marvels at the State forests in Germany, to whose level Ireland may well set her ideal in forestry. On the other hand, travelling in Italy and Spain, one realises what Ireland may become unless afforestation is made a national hobby—a volunteer crusade working under trained advice from the State. No country grows better timber than Ireland, and no country needs it more. A country which does not work its own coal must plant against the day when turf becomes exhausted.

Professor Henry sent me some slips of the populus generosa two and a half years ago. They have grown like Jack's beanstalks, twelve feet high, and are almost too big for planting out already. Fifteen years ago I planted the Himalayan bamboo in the woods, and it has attained jungle size. Though the native stock of sycamore and larch are doing badly, what magnificent specimens survive here of both, of upwards of a hundred years' growth! The plantation of bogland with Scotch fir, oak, and poplar seems to be an act crying out to heaven for success. It would be interesting to see what would have happened if, thirty years ago, the State had not only bought the landlords out, but planted all their demesnes and outlying acres. Another generation will have reason to rejoice or regret as we act in this.

Meantime, what is needed is a league of Irishmen interested in forestry who are willing to bind themselves to plant 1,000, or 10,000 trees in their lifetime. As a rural philosopher remarked to me: "We shall be able to grow our own coffins." But who would not rather leave a wood of trees as his memorial instead of a mouldering tombstone? My sincere thanks to Dr. Gogarty.—Yours, etc.,

UNITY OF THE CHURCH.

SOUTHERN HELP FOR THE NORTH.

DIVISION WOULD BE DISASTER.

PROBLEM "BOUND TO ARISE."

Speaking at the Synod of the United Diocese of Down and Connor and Dromore, in Belfast yesterday, Dr. Grierson expressed the belief that the worst period in Ireland was over and that peace was drawing near.

Every member of the diocese hoped that civil and religious liberty would flourish in Ulster, and that the members of all religious communities might live together in peace, harmony and good-will.

Throughout Ulster there was no other wish than that the Provisional Government might function wisely and bring the blessings of peace to the Free State.

The Bishop and others acknowledged with gratitude the assistance that had been received from Southern dioceses towards the provision of church accommodation for Belfast.

Mr. John Bristow said that it would be disastrous should the political division of the country create a division in the Church. The problem was "bound to arise in some shape," but he trusted that nobody in the North would say or do anything that might lead to a possible division of the Church of Ireland into two Churches.

BISHOP'S ADDRESS.

PEACE AND PROSPERITY NEARER.

The Bishop said that for several years past they had met at times of great difficulty and perplexity. While the dangers were far from being removed, yet they would, he thought, be wrong not to recognise that, in spite of many ominous signs, there was a not unreasonable hope that probably the worst might be over, and that with the blessing of God days of peace and prosperity were drawing near.

If the darkest days were a call to the Church of Christ to deliver unhesitatingly her message, so also did days of awakening hope demand it.

In Northern Ireland they had much to thank God for. They had watched the foundation of a new Legislature being laid, and they had seen the commencement of its career. And they might well thank God for its propitious start, and for the steady progress of its early life.

He was sure that he expressed the desire and prayer of every member of their Church when he said that their earnest longing was that every individual in Northern Ireland might find in it a Province where civil and religious liberty would flourish, and where the members of all religious communities might live together in peace, harmony and good-will. (Applause).

POSITION IN SOUTH.

Of the rest of Ireland it was more difficult to speak. In the Free State many of their co-religionists were passing through distress, deprivations and horrors difficult to refer to.

But two things, he thought, could usefully be said. First, the Provisional Government was now the lawfully appointed authority in the twenty-six counties, and their hope and prayer was that it might be granted such wisdom in counsel, and such strength of authority as might enable them to reduce disorder and restrain crime. He believed that throughout Ulster there was no other wish than that it might be able to function wisely, and bring the blessing of peace and prosperity to Southern Ireland, which, with their province, comprised that Ireland which is "the mother of us all."

Secondly, he would desire to express to their co-religionists in the Free State their deep sympathy for them in their sorrows. They would wish them to know that they were not forgotten in their thoughts and prayers. Knowing what they did of their trials, they wondered at their patient bravery. When these sad days were over, he believed men not now in agreement with them would look back with admiration upon their courage and faithfulness to principle.

THANKS TO SOUTH.

Mr. John Bristow moved the adoption of the diocesan report, which he thought was eminently satisfactory. They could congratulate themselves that in times of financial stress and difficulty the diocese had not failed the Church. (Applause.) It was a very encouraging thing to see more parishes proceeding from the lower to a higher scale in the scheme.

Referring to the Belfast Additional Clergy Fund, Mr. Bristow said that it had been very substantially increased of late by bequests, and it had been of enormous assistance in meeting the problem of providing for the increasing Church population in Belfast. They had from time to time received not only from the General Synod of the Church, but also from the various dioceses in the Southern and Western parts of Ireland, contributions to that great Belfast Church problem.

He thought that they could feel devoutly thankful that their friends in the other parts of Ireland had looked upon the Church in Belfast as worthy of support in that way. It gave them a feeling of the union of the Church as a whole—a feeling that they reciprocated as strongly as possible.

Northern and Southern Ireland were divided politically, but it would be a great disaster if the political division should succeed in creating division between the Church in Northern Ireland and Southern Ireland. (Hear, hear.)

The problem had not yet arisen, but it was bound to arise in some shape or form, and he should like to feel that no member of the Church in the North would say or do anything that would lead to a possible division into two Churches. (Hear, hear.)

Rev. Canon Kerr (Banbridge) seconded the motion, and the report was adopted.

Health, Strength & Vitality

are the unfailing result of a short course of Hall's Wine.

In all cases where a tonic is needful Hall's Wine supplies the need—quickly, generously, lastingly. It is both a tonic and health-builder—a powerful restorative that immediately stirs all the vital processes to action; a true strength-builder that makes you splendidly fit for work or play.

Do not let the coming winter find you in a low state of health—nerve-worn, lacking vitality, anæmic or generally run-down. Take Hall's Wine now to tone up the nerves, enrich the blood, and restore the whole system to perfect fitness. Remember, in weakness or in run-down conditions, Hall's Wine never fails.

Here is convincing medical testimony:

"Having proved its worth, I shall invariably feel it my duty to recommend Hall's Wine."

"Hall's Wine braced me up so effectively that I have pinned my faith to it ever since."

INFANT AID SOCIETY.—It is announced in our advertisement columns that the Infant Aid Society will hold its annual flag days this week. The Society supplies milk free, and at very low prices, to poor mothers. It also supplies free dinners, Glaxo dried milk, and coal and garments; while voluntary workers visit sick women and children. During last year, 1921, 6,213 gallons of milk were given free, 6,265 gallons were sold at a considerably reduced price; 795 free dinners; 384 pounds of Glaxo dried milk; 38 bags of coal; and 1,019 garments were distributed. The cost of the relief given during the year amounted to £1,429.

IRISH NURSING NEWS.—Number 1 of the Irish Nursing News, which can be obtained from the Editresses at 30 Kenilworth road, Rathgar, Dublin, is a brightly-written, well-produced magazine, which will be welcomed by nurses all over Ireland. It contains articles of practical value to the profession, recipes and household hints, personal anecdotes, and notes in lighter vein. The magazine fills a long-felt want, and should promote the social side of the lives of the hardest-worked women.

FORTHCOMING CONCERT.—Two notable Irish singers will appear in Dublin at a concert to be held within the next month. The actual date has not yet been fixed. On this occasion the public will be afforded an opportunity of hearing Miss Margaret Burke Sheridan and Mr. Walter McNally, who are returning here after their recent successes in Italy. Their stay will be of short duration, as both have important engagements for the coming season in Italy.

HAPPY MEMORIES.—The Brewers' Exhibition in London recalls the fact that the entire Rotunda buildings and the grounds where the Rink Post Office stands in Dublin were utilised many years ago for an Irish Brewers and Distillers' Exhibition, including mineral waters and foreign wines and spirits. For one shilling admission fee the thirsty Dubliner could "sample" free of cost for a glorious twelve hours, with military bands changing their tunes almost as often as the sampler varied his refreshment.

FUNERALS OF FATHER AND SON.—Funerals took place at Glasnevin yesterday of Edward V. Kavanagh, of the Marine Investigation Department, and his son, Sergeant-Major Kavanagh. Edward Kavanagh was killed in a motor accident on the North Wall on Friday, and young Kavanagh was killed in a fight with Republicans in County Cork.

CONNAUGHT.

RATES IN ARREAR.—At the meeting of the Sligo County Council it transpired that £20,000 of last year's rates were still outstanding. A resolution was adopted threatening the rate-collectors with suspension, or dismissal, unless they made an effort to get in the rates by next meeting.

LEINSTER.

KING'S COUNTY LAWLESSNESS.—Armed men stole porter, bovril, bacon, sugar, and chocolate from a Grand Canal boat at Ballycommon, King's County. While repairs were being made to the engine of a boat at Rahan, raiders looted almost the whole cargo. Armed men stopped an employé of Messrs. P. and H. Egan, Tullamore, who was on his way to Kilbeggan with a cartload of goods, and stole three gallons of whiskey.

TULLAMORE BILL.—The following malicious injury claims have been received by the Tullamore Rural District Council:—George Mitchell and other representatives, for the murder of Mr. Thomas Mitchell, bank manager, Tullamore, on July 3, £1,000; Lady Emily Burr and others, for gardens destroyed at Brookfield, Tullamore, £825.

MUNSTER.

NEW CLONMEL STRIKE PROSPECT.—Clonmel Brewery may close down shortly as the result of a wages dispute. The owners propose a reduction of 12½ per cent., but the men say that they will not agree to a "cut" of more than 2s. a week. Negotiations for the settlement of the strike at Messrs. Cleeve's factory have reached a new deadlock.

BARLEY SLUMP.—Nenagh barley market was a disappointing one for the farmers. Maltsters said that they would not buy until next week. The low prices ruling in other parts of the country are said to be insufficient to pay the cost of production.

ECCLESIASTICAL APPOINTMENT.—The Rev. E. A. Tichborne, who succeeded the late Venerable Archdeacon William Daunt as rector of Queenstown parish five and a half years ago, has been appointed to Treasurership of Cloyne Cathedral, and to a canonry in St. Fin Barre's Cathedral, Cork.

ULSTER.

FALL FROM AN EXPRESS.—Mr. Daniel Charleton, stated to reside at 25 Coombe street, Dublin, fell from the 9.15 Dublin-Belfast train near Bessbrook yesterday morning, and was killed. The train was travelling at seventy miles an hour at the time. It is said that Charleton suddenly put down his newspaper, opened the door, and disappeared. The body was taken to the morgue at Newry.

HEAVY MOTOR TRAFFIC DAMAGE.—Lurgan Rural Council, at its quarterly meeting in Portadown on Monday, protested against the injustice to the ratepayers in having to maintain roads that were being destroyed by heavy motor traffic from Belfast, and passed a resolution demanding that the contribution from the motor taxation should be increased to 80 per cent. in the case of main roads, and 60 per cent. for the second-class roads.

52 YEARS AS TOWN SOLICITOR.—Mr. Wellington Young, after fifty-two years' service as Town Solicitor of Lisburn, has tendered his resignation to the Urban Council, to date from December 1. During that long period he has seen many changes in the personnel of the Board and the appearance of the town, of which he could give an interesting historical sketch.

DANGEROUS PRACTICE.—When an eleven year old cyclist let go of a motor lorry which was towing him along a road near Dungannon, his bicycle swerved and he fell off. He was so badly hurt that he had to be taken to a hospital.

STEEPLECHASING.—A horse, with cart attached, jumped a closed gate at Bawnboy road station level crossing, Co. Cavan, and crashed through the gate on the other side. The cart was smashed, and Mr. Johnstone, an elderly man who was driving, was injured.

YOUTHFUL DRINKER.—For giving a seven weeks old baby whiskey and water to drink, a woman was fined 10s. and costs at Ballycastle, Co. Antrim. The prosecution was ordered by the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

A DONEGAL BURDEN.—At Lifford Quarter Sessions, Mr. George L. Young was awarded £13,680 for the malicious burning of Culdaff House and contents. The amount is to be levied on the County Donegal at a whole.

Three armed men stopped a bread van near Londonderry City boundary and robbed the driver of £15.

Mrs. John M'Gee, of Clontycarty, near Caledon, County Tyrone, has been found drowned in the river Blackwater near her house.

Perennial grass seed realised 31s. a cwt., and Italian 28s. in Dungannon market yesterday, with keen demand for the large supplies on offer.

To facilitate York live stock market shipments from Dublin, the London and North-Western Railway Company yesterday put on an extra cattle steamer to Holyhead.

At a meeting of the beneficed clergy of the city and suburbs of Dublin, the Rev. W. W. Dungan, Clerical Vicar of Christ Church Cathedral, was elected "Sterne" Lecturer for 1923-1926.

"Violet Day" in Derry, organised for the Loyalist Relief Fund Bazaar by the Unionist-Labour Association, realised £30.

To-day at 4.30 the monthly prayer meeting of the Hibernian Church Missionary Society will be held at 21 Molesworth street, Dublin.

Accidental death was the verdict of the court at an inquest in Midleton on the body of John Cody, who was killed by a train last Thursday.

The Recorder of Dublin sat at Green street Courthouse yesterday and disposed of a number of ejectment cases, none of which presented any feature of public interest.

National troops have arrested five lads, aged from 14 to 18, on suspicion of being concerned in telegraph wire cutting at Bdnaghey, King's County.

The death has occurred in Newry of Mr. Edward Moles, a well-known commercial traveller, and brother of Mr. Thomas Moles, M.P. (Belfast).

Midleton's housing scheme has been put into operation. Four houses are being built at a cost of £2,589. The work affords much-needed employment to the village.

It was stated at the first annual meeting of the Dungannon Musical Festival Association that forty classes would be arranged in connection with the forthcoming competitions.

Mr. P. J. Timoney has been appointed postmaster at Queenstown. The new postmaster was for several years overseer in the office, and since June last had been acting postmaster.

Mr. George Baillie, Annaghanoon, Waringstown, and Dr. C. J. Boucher, Donacloney, have been appointed to the Commission of the Peace of County Down, and Messrs. W. Flack and Jackson Pillow, Markethill, for County Armagh.

The communion service in use in Killead Presbyterian Church, County Antrim, prior to last Sunday, when the Rev. J. W. Gibson, Broadway, Belfast dedicated a new presentation set of individual cups, had been in use for 177 years. Part of an older set exists dating back to the days of Jeremy Taylor—about 1657.

Captain C. C. Craig, D.L., has been offered by Mr. Bonar Law the post of Vice-Chamberlain of the Royal Household, and Whip in the new Government, but has declined in order to retain a free hand as Chairman of the Ulster Unionist Parliamentary Party.

BRITISH VESSEL IN DISTRESS.

The wireless station at Marseilles intercepted a distress signal at 1.30 yesterday from a British steamer. The vessel's position was then 40 miles west of Quessant.

THE CURRAGH.

GALTEE BOY WINS CHIEF RACE.

AQUILON SCORES AGAIN.

The two-day fixture at the Curragh, which opened yesterday, is an additional meeting arranged at the request of owners in order to make up for the many other meetings throughout the country which had to be abandoned, and but for the fact that once again there were no railway facilities there would likely have been a very large attendance. As it was, the crowd was rather small, but the racing left little to be desired, and in most instances good-sized fields faced the starter. Though bitterly cold, the weather, considering the time of the year, was favourable, and, little rain having fallen of late, the courses yielded very fair galloping.

The Johnstown Plate, a mile and a half hurdle race, opened the proceedings, and of the fourteen runners for this Treble Scotch and Petit Beau were the best backed. For most of the early portion of the race the pair were at the head of the field, and once Petit Beau dropped back beaten about a quarter of a mile from home Mr. J. S. Graham's horse was never afterwards seriously troubled. The outsiders, Boomerang and Ballygibby, offered most opposition, but their efforts to overhaul Treble Scotch were futile. Golden Fleece was prominent approaching the second last hurdle, but died out of the race subsequently, and it looks as if Mr. Parrish's horse, who at one stage of his career would have made short work of the opposition in this race, had seen his best day. He leaves shortly for Bangor-on-Dee to be trained for hurdle-racing in England during the coming winter season.

The Dollanstown Plate, which was for maiden two-year-olds, was regarded as particularly open, and six of the eleven runners were well supported. There was some delay at the post, caused chiefly by Golden Grey, but with the exception of Count Algy the lot were sent off on level terms, and Golden Grey and Moor Maiden drawing out from the other four furlongs had a rare tussle for a long way. Eventually Golden Grey wore the other down, and, running out the finish generously, won in comfortable style.

The Mullaboden Plate, which was the chief race on the card, appropriately provided the most interesting contest. Westview, who, on the strength of running second to Little Marten in the Irish Cesarewitch, was a strong favourite, flattened at the turning into the straight, and soon was headed by both Galtee Boy and Mount Prospect, and, this pair fighting out the finish, a grand race resulted in a short head victory for Galtee Boy, who, after running into receive a 12lb. penalty for the Irish Cambridgeshire. As well as the placed horses, Polish Prince and Celtic Mist were also in the fighting line all the way up the straight, and finished close up with the leaders. There was a regular turn up in the Camp Plate, for which Tipperary and Tipperary Boy were the fancied candidates. Of the pair, Tipperary Boy made the better showing, but he never looked like troubling Doctor's Call, who, jumping off in front, led from beginning to end, and was subsequently bought in for 176 sovs.

Ironmaster, carrying a 10lb. penalty for his Phœnix Park success, found one too good for him in Braemar in the Country Plate, the latter having the race won at all stages. In the 2.15 field Plate, as the betting predicted, was a match between the two-year-olds, Aquilon and Komorn, and the latter, after showing rare pace for five furlongs, was caught and outstayed by Mr. F. Kenyon's colt, who ran in the hands of a strong work in the last furlong. Highlandmore was beaten off at the start, but after losing considerable ground ran on into third place. Details:—

WINDSOR.

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME AND SELECTIONS.

No doubt, numbers of Midland sportsmen will decide to enjoy the steeplechasing at Pershore to-day, but the great majority of flat race regulars will prefer travelling South from Birmingham and take Royal Windsor on their way to Newbury for the week-end. There is every promise of a fine meeting. Over the Bays Meadows the sun shone brightly almost throughout yesterday to restore the going to its customary excellence, and so many horses are on the spot already that huge fields represent an absolute certainty. With its value of £500 the Clarence Three-Year-Old Handicap over a mile and a half takes pride of place. Austin Friars has been sent, and his class will enable him to shine; but if Cottrill can get a strong boy for this son of Aldford may win, with Trevise contributing undoubted danger. Other selections:

Mill Plate—Bulford.
Rays Handicap—Duplicity.
Frogmore Nursery—Boscombe.
Black Nest Handicap—The President.
Apprentices' Stakes—Baton Rouge.

(The figures preceding the horses' names give the placings in the last three races in which engaged. S. indicates started slowly.)

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES.

IRISH STOCK EXCHANGES.

DUBLIN.

STAGNANT, BUT WEAKER GENERAL MARKET. "CASHEL" BETTER. GUINNESS AND PARENT TYRE DEFERRED RELAPSE. MARCONIS, TOBACCOS, AND OILS SELLERS.

There was a distinct contraction in the volume of dealing on the Dublin Stock Exchange. Selling orders turned up and were occasionally pressed, but support was not of a sustained character. Investors generally consider that until the result of the General Election is decided it is just as well to confine business within strict limits. The Funds were nearly all weaker on profit-taking. The Bank section also lost tone, and slightly easier prices were current. There was little to choose from in the Brewery and Distillery market. Guinness Ord. relapsed steadily on realisations, and Power and Son Pref. were also the turn easier, while Castlebellingham issues were well held, and the Pref. closed higher. Steam and Canal securities were neglected. Marconi Shares remain a dull market. Home Rails were quiet, but Great Southern hardened a fraction further to the half-price level. Tramways were drawn blank. Parent Tyre Def. relapsed somewhat. Bolands slipped back further. Tobaccos were again weaker. Textiles were easier, especially Coats, at the close. Goulding Ord. gave way. Maguire and Gatchell and Hugh Moore and Alexander Pref. issues were both wanted. Mexican Eagle Oils further relapsed.

The Funds were easier on the political distractions of the present time. War Loan 4½ p.c. fell ½ to 94½, War Loan 5 p.c. ½ to 98½, War Loan 4 p.c. (Tax Free) ½ to 100½, and Funding Loan ½ to 85¾, while Victory Bonds rose ½ to 88¾ for an odd lot. India 3½ p.c. repeated 65. Banks had an easier tone. Munster and Leinsters fell ⅛ to 6¾ and Royals ½ to 11½, while Nationals repeated 18½.

Breweries and Distilleries varied a little. The feature was the selling pressure that developed in Guinness Ord. Shares, which closed ⅛ lower at 444½-½. J. Power and Son Pref. gave way 3d. to 20s. 1½d., but Castlebellingham and Drogheda Pref. rose ½ to 5½ buyers, and the Ord. repeated 6.

Marconi Ord. Shares eased 3d. to 45s. 3d.

As regards Home Rails, Great Southern and Western rose ½ to 50, while Midland Great Western repeated 30, and the 4½ p.c. Debs. 62¾.

In Trams, Cork Electric Pref. repeated 80s.

Parent Tyre Def. fell 1s. 3d. to 27s.; and in Bakery issues, Bolands further relapsed 1s. to 43s.

In Drapery issues, McBirneys show no alteration at 16s. Pim Brothers 4 p.c. Debs. were bid up ½ to 59½ without getting any stock, and Arnott Debs. rose ⅛ to 64.

Among Manufacturing Shares, British-American fell 1s. 6d. to 84s. 9d., and Imperials weakened a few pence to 69s. 1½d.-69s. and closed sellers. Coats closed 6d. weaker at 65s. 3d., after dealing at 65s. 6d.-65s. 7½d. Cottons remain at 45s. Courtaulds opened 4½d. better at 54s. 3d., but later dealings were effected at 54s. Goulding Ord. fell ⅛ to 5¼, and Coats "B" Pref. remain at 24s.

In Trading, etc., Maguire and Gatchell Pref. rose 1s. 6d. to 52s. 6d., and H. Moore and Alexander Pref. 1s. 3d. to 85s.-87s. 6d. unchanged. Burke Ord. at 49s., and Dockrell Debs. at 65½, were steady.

Mexican Eagle Oil fell to 53s. 9d., and Maypole Dairy Deferred realised 6s. 6d.

INACTIVE STOCKS.

PRICES LOWER.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT AND THE "FINANCIAL NEWS" OF TO-DAY.)

The lack of activity which characterised the Stock markets on the first day of the week was again noticeable yesterday, and few departments showed any features of interest. In so far as concerned gilt-edged securities the tendency throughout the greater part of the day was steady at the slightly lower levels, with a fractional hardening towards the close. Funding Loan was a good market, and the 3½ and 4½ per cent. War Loans closed better, while Irish Lands receded. Indian Government securities were generally on the easier side except for the 5½, which finished ¼ higher. "Canadas" receded 1¼ to 161. Colonials were again more distinguished for steadiness than for any notable price movements. Following the general tendency, Home Railway prior charges were steady, but unaltered. Home Rails showed fewer changes than on the previous day, although where alterations occurred, they were mainly in favour of holders. The "heavies" were devoid of feature, except for South Western Def., which was marked up ¼ to 32¾. "Coras," after going as low as 13½, closed unchanged at 14¼, and "Floras" refusing, as usual, to travel in the same direction, provided the "star" feature of this section by being marked up ¼ to 49¾.

LONDON STOCKS QUIET.

FALL IN GILT-EDGED.

The Stock markets were rather quiet in dealings, and business was restricted, the holiday to-day and the election activity interfering greatly. The Gilt-edged market was dull. The 5 p.c. War Loan lost ¼ at 98¾ x.d. Consols fell ¼ to 57, the 4 p.c. War Loan fell ¼ to 100¾. India 3½ p.c. was ½ lower at 65.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES were quiet, but steady, French Loans remaining unchanged. German Threes also were unaltered. Brazil 4 p.c. rose a point to 43, but the Funding of 1914 lost a point at 62. Chinese Fives of 1896 rose 1 to 83. Portuguese Threes rose ½ to 27½. San Paulo dropped a point to 104.

HOME RAILS were very dull, and movements few and small. Great Northern Def. rose ½ to 41, and Metropolitan ½ to 55. Caledonian Def. fell ½ to 14¼.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN RAILS were not largely dealt in, but the tone remained fairly good. "Canpacs," however, fell 2 to 161. Grand Trunks showed no change. In Argentines, Pacifics rose ¼ to 68¾, and Central ½ to 72¾. Argentine Great Western Ord. rose ½ to 76. Antofagastas Ord. gained ¼. United of Havana at 71 put on 1½. Mexican National 2nd Pref. fell ½ to 3½.

IDLE OIL SHARES.

PARIS AGAIN A SELLER.

As was only to be expected, having regard to the fact that the Stock Exchange is closed to-day, business in most departments of the "House" yesterday was once more restricted, the impending elections again being an influence making for quiet conditions. In the Oil share market business was almost a negligible quantity, not only was public interest almost non-existent, but professionals are holding their hands, the view prevailing among the latter being that there is the possibility of still lower prices, enabling them to get in to better advantage. Paris was again a small seller of its favourites, and the general tendency was dull, final movements in the majority of cases being against holders. Mexican Eagles further weakened as a result of selling on Paris account. Shells again moved down slightly, although there was no pronounced selling pressure. It is still feared, however, that a fair amount of liquidation is bound to result from the dissolution of the pool, and the shares are talked still lower. At the same time, having regard to the world-wide ramifications of the Shell Company and its partner, the Royal Dutch, the view is also expressed that at the present price, or anything below that level, the shares are worth picking up to put away. Royal Dutch continued to dwindle owing to the absence of demand. Anglo-Persians again declined, the continued dulness of these shares being attributable to adverse rumours regarding the northern oil concessions of Persia; but, so far as we can learn, the position in regard to these areas has undergone no change of late. Burmahs weakened in sympathy with Anglo-Persians. London and Thames Haven Oil Wharves continued in quiet request, and closed firm. Trinidads were again steady, it being understood that companies operating on the island are now obtaining appreciably higher prices for their products than was the case until quite recently. The output of Trinidads Oilfields of Trinidad announces a production for the past week of 1,300 tons of oil, which compares with 1,265 tons for the preceding week. Rumanian descriptions had an improving tendency. Mexican Eagles were finished easier, the production figures for the past week being poor. Closing prices:—

VALUABLE CENTRALLY-SITUATED FULLY-LICENSED PREMISES,
46 MOORE STREET,
LEASE 60 YEARS FROM 1905. HEAD RENT £60 PER ANNUM.
TO BE SOLD BY PUBLIC AUCTION, AT 10 LOWER ORMOND QUAY,
ON FRIDAY, THE 10TH OF NOVEMBER, 1922, AT ONE O'CLOCK

By direction of Mr. WILLIAM O'BYRNE, consequent on his Purchase of the IMPORTANT LICENSED PREMISES KNOWN as CARPENTER'S, Nos. 2, 3, and 4 RATHGAR ROAD.

The Premises have been practically re-built, and have been in the occupation of the Vendor for the past twenty-five years, during which period an extensive Business has been conducted on most methodical and profitable lines.

The Business portion comprises: A compact, well-fitted Bar, with Enclosed Cash Office; spacious Cellarage and Stores; Lavatory accommodation; large Concreted Yard, with a Building 70 feet long, enclosing two Stables or Garage and Loft, also Porter Store. This yard has entrance from Moore Street Market to the Bar, which entrance is extensively availed of and forms a valuable adjunct to the business. One of the Garages is much underlet at £18 per annum; the other is in Vendor's occupation.

The Residential accommodation, with hall entrance, consists of: Drawingroom, with marble mantel and tiled hearth; diningroom, four bedrooms, bathroom, w.c.; kitchen, with close range and copper cylinder; heated linen press, scullery, &c. The business position of these premises in this market thoroughfare is particularly good. The large patronage extended to this Establishment will be indicated by the trading returns, which may be inspected at the Auctioneer's Office. The premises MAY BE VIEWED between 11 o'clock and 2 on production of Card from Auctioneer, who can recommend this Property to prospective purchasers as an excellent Business Investment.

Conditions of Sale from Messrs. J. H. WALSH and CO., Solicitors, 1 Lower Ormond Quay.
